Sewer capacity may block plans, spawn litigation

Amador pact settlement is near

Teacher unit and board negotiators in the Amador Valley Joint High School District have reached tentative agreement on a contract.

The representative council of the Amador Valley Secondary Educators Association (AVSEA) will meet Tuesday at 3:15 p.m. to vote on the tentative pact. A recommendation to approve or turn down will then go to the bargaining unit.

Terms of the tentative contract call for a 5 per cent increase in the salary schedule, full coverage of medical benefits for full-time employees, full medical for all employees, and increased financial benefits to early retirees.

No progress was reported in contract negotiation talks between Pleasanton district teachers and board representatives. The two sides could not reach an agreement last year.

Carl Krause, assistant superintendent for personnel, said the next Pleasanton district session is scheduled Tuesday morning.

Legal counsel of the California Teachers Association is expected to review terms of the Amador contract prior to presentation to high school district teachers.

No date has been set for the Amador board to act on the tentative pact. However, Krause speculated the board might call a special meeting later this month if teachers act favorably on the proposed pact.

is expanded to its optimum capacity.

The city planning department estimates new residential dwellings alone will need a maximum of almost four million gallons of sewage treated each day. That estimate, however, is based on a future Pleasanton developed to the residential limit.

Nonetheless, the estimate is one-and-a-half million gallons a day more than the VCSD plant is expected to treat once it is fully expanded and it doesn't include estimated sewage needs for commercial and industrial growth.

Include commercial and industrial growth needs, and the difference between need and availability could go as high as six or seven million gallons, according to a planning department member.

That leaves landowners in the city who were promised top priority on all new sewer connections, as a result of a 1972 class-action suit, with a problem. They either get all their needs met for sewer connections in new developments, thus leaving the rest of Pleasanton without any new development -- or they get their needs only partially met.

Attorneys representing at least two of those landowners have told the city attorney they intend to take legal action, if necessary, to get all the sewage capacity to which they think they're entitled.

This situation may embroil the city's prospective growth management program in lawsuits that could last years. The program would designate who could get what sewage in the future. Some landowners included in the 1972 agreement feel the court decided what sewage they will be allotted, and they don't want the city's growth program to change their plans.

Waiting on City Hall

LIVERMORE — The wheels of justice may turn slowly, but Gerald Henderson of 5346 Scenic Ave., Springtown area, feels the wheels of action in city government turn even slower.

Henderson wants to build a fence along the side of his corner house, four and a half feet back from the sidewalk.

Henderson took the request to the planning commission over a year ago. Since that time he has faced countless delays and indecision.

Lawmen reject claim of Klan, police unity

Downtown businesses could be united in a new merchants' association.

Downtown business organizes

PLEASANTON — Downtown merchants may be forming a strong merchants' association to promote and improve the central business area.

The last merchants' association died of apathy 18 years ago.

Since then, the only downtown business group has been organized through the Chamber of Commerce. The 26 merchants voted unanimously to discontinue that Chamber committee and start on their own at a breakfast meeting Friday.

"Shopping centers all have their associations, but we're disjointed," remarked Max Bittner, owner of Max's Shoes on Main Street.

The group voted Joyce Getty, owner of The Gingham Corner, president of the fledgling association. Six of the merchants were appointed to organize the association's charter and by-laws. All were urged to recruit other merchants.

Getty complained that the Chamber committee didn't have enough support to do anything about problems facing downtown businesses.

"Many of the same problems the committee studied in 1968 still exist," she said, noting that those problems lie in two areas: improving business and trying to get more parking lots and trees downtown.

Several merchants felt business is hurting because there are no large stores downtown. All agreed a strong association would attract larger businesses and strengthen the city's industrial base.

The Ku Klux Klan is not infiltrating the ranks of local police agencies. That's what law enforcement officials from Livermore, Pleasanton, Alameda County and Contra Costa County Sheriff's Departments seem to think.

"I feel confident that no one on our force has even considered the Ku Klux Klan or any such organization," said Livermore Police Chief Ronald L. Lindgren. His statement came Friday in response to a revelation by The Times that some area police officers had been recruited by the Klan.

"We have a screening process," Lindgren said. "We give our potential officers polygraph tests and send them to a psychiatrist." He pointed out that any results displaying racial bigotry would exempt a candidate from the force.

"If a policeman admitted to joining the KKK I would be very concerned about the performance of his duty," Lindgren added.

The Times received a number of calls Friday expressing surprise that "people like that" would even be active in the community.

Pleasanton's acting police captain Ronald Nelson said he didn't think any of his officers were interested in the Klan. "I don't know what we could do about it if they were," Nelson said. "Everybody has a right to join what they want."

Assistant Alameda County Sheriff Dan Vohl said that he didn't have any knowledge of anyone in his department being in the Klan. "If someone admitted to being a member of the KKK," Vohl said, "we'd have to obtain a legal opinion as to whether or not it would constitute a conflict of interest."

According to Vohl, if the officer was on tenure he would have the right to appeal any action taken. "Regardless of the KKK or the American Nazi Party, we would have to judge the organization on whether or not it is subversive to our Constitution," he said.

It was revealed Thursday that Klan organizer Dave Cheney of Hayward had a recruiting drive brewing in Alameda County aimed at increasing the KKK's membership and adding more police officers to the organization. Cheney even said the KKK wanted to set up a chapter composed of nothing but police.

Santa Rita, Hayward?

County mulls new pre-trial cell site

OAKLAND — New reports by staff and by Supervisor Joseph Bort about where the county should build 500 new pre-trial jail cells should sharpen up the debate about whether Hayward should get a new jail.

If Hayward doesn't get 300 to 500 cells attached to its new courthouse, it means they will join the post-trial prison to be built on the Santa Rita site north of Pleasanton.

Supervisor Charles Santana wants all of them built at Santa Rita; he's Hayward's supervisor and that city bitterly opposes a jail right next to a middle class residential neighborhood.

Since Oakland supervisor John

George is philosophically opposed to any more jails, it leaves the Valley's supervisor, Valerie Raymond, as the swing vote on the Hayward jail.

She would appear to have a fairly simple choice. Putting a 500 bed jail in Hayward would cost $21 million for construction and $5.5 million for annual operation cost.

Putting the same size jail at Santa Rita would cost $28.5 million because of construction delays to 1980 and a need for a new design. Operation costs at Santa Rita would be $5.6 million per year, plus an additional $51,000 annually for transportation.

It's clear the Hayward alternative is cheaper; but Raymond has hung back on giving her deciding vote to the Hayward jail because she respects the feelings of the grass roots opponents who live near the proposed jail.

And so far no opposition has been expressed to putting all of the cells at Santa Rita. That's where all of the south county pre-trial cells are now and Valley residents seem to feel okay about it.

Bort has endorsed a third alternative: build 300 cells in Hayward and 200 at Santa Rita. It would cost $22.7 million to build and $6 million per year to operate.

Bort's alternative would have the flexibility of 100 "swing" cells at Santa Rita, which would first be occupied by post-sentence prisoners and later by pre-trial prisoners as the need arose. Meanwhile, the post-sentence facilities at Santa Rita would be expanded.

There appears to be a serious drawback, though, in Bort's compromise. With only 300 cells in Hayward, that jail would not meet south county needs on the men's side 57 per cent of the time by the year 1990. A 400 bed jail would be inadequate only 20 days a year, and a 500 bed jail would be all right all year, except for two days on the women's side.

Santana wants no truck with any size jail in Hayward. "All the cells should go to Santa Rita. Everyone I've talked to feels that way, in San Leandro and Union City, too, not just Hayward."

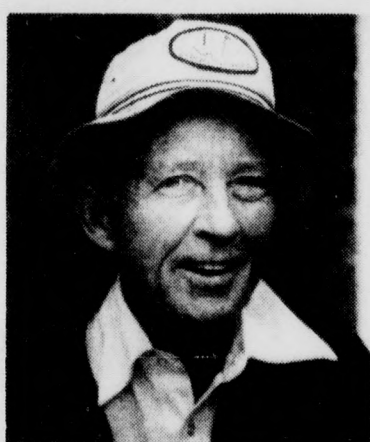

What about having a jail close to the families of offenders being held prisoner?

"Aw, you're breaking my heart," said Santana. "If you do that, why not put specialized jails like San Quentin and Vacaville closer to local communities, too."

Youth's car hijacked

Lesher News Bureau

A 16-year-old San Ramon boy was yanked from his car here Thursday by a man and a woman who then took his car, sheriff's deputies said. The victim, Dean Hawk, said the couple told him that some Mexicans had stolen parts from their engine and asked him for $10 to buy new parts.

They promised that if he would meet them at Juvenile Hall Friday they would repay him, he said.

When Hawk refused, they pulled him from the car and took it, deputies reported.

The car was a 1970 Chevrolet Nova.

Growth plan hearing

The Pleasanton city council is holding a public hearing regarding the growth management program Tuesday, Oct. 18, at 8 p.m. in the chambers at 30 West Angela Street.

The council is reserving this time to hear anyone who wishes speak out pro or con about future development of the city. The council is considering adopting a growth management program a week after this public hearing, so the time for comments is now.

High speed I-580 chase kills driver

A bizarre incident early Friday morning on Highway 580 killed a 34-year-old Livermore man and sent an off-duty Alameda County sheriff's deputy to Valley Memorial Hospital.

Clyde P. Geilfuss, of 1115 P. St., was reported dead on arrival at VMH from head injuries sustained when thrown from his car after ramming a motorcyclist, Sgt. Leonard F. Roache, 30, at the junction of 580 and Highway 680.

According to California Highway Patrol witnesses, Geilfuss hit the center divider, was thrown from his car then crushed by it after knocking Roache from his motorcycle. Geilfuss allegedly had chased Roache and Deputy Thomas Houchins more than five miles from Castro Valley at speeds up to 90 miles per hour before the crash.

Roache was taken to VMH and treated for multiple abrasions then released. The CHP reported an autopsy was scheduled for Geilfuss.

Two do the job of one

Miriam Miller and Ruth Freis decided that their combined skills could get them employment — as a team.

They searched for — and found — a single position as director of the Valley Child Care center in Livermore.

Freis and Miller are part of the growing ranks of workers who have discovered job-sharing, a way for people to combine talents in one full-time position.

Job-sharing has been successfully attempted in California school districts and businesses — and Valley employers are just becoming aware of the possibilities it can offer.

"We enjoy the creativity that comes with working in a team," says Ruth Freis.

Other workers, apparently, are finding that when it comes to employment — two heads may just be better than one.

Crosby death stuns world of admirers

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Struggling to hold back tears, one of Bing Crosby's sons came to Spain Saturday to claim his father's body. The singer, mourned by the millions he entertained, will be brought home to the United States for burial.

"I know he died the way he would have wanted to," 19-year-old Harry Crosby told reporters in Madrid.

Crosby, an avid golfer, suffered a fatal heart attack Friday after finishing, and winning, a golf game on a course near Madrid. He was 73.

To the world he may have been famous, Harry Crosby said, "but to me he was just my father, a wonderful father."

Crosby, an American idol, was remembered and admired by two generations for his easygoing style on stage and screen. He had made more than 70 movies and sold more records than anyone until Elvis Presley came along.

Spanish medical authorities performed an autopsy Saturday and confirmed that the singer died of a massive heart attack, U.S. consular officials said.

The officials said Spanish regulations probably would delay Crosby's last trip home until Monday. His son was to accompany the body on a commercial flight.

A small crowd of Spaniards joined reporters and photographers outside the city morgue in Madrid, where Crosby's body was taken for autopsy.

U.S. officials said the body was being prepared for transfer to the United States. But they said Spanish death certification requirements probably would not be completed until Monday, and the body would not be released until then.

Harry Crosby, oldest of three children born after Crosby's second marriage in 1957 to Kathryn Grant, was met at Madrid airport by Cesar de Zulueta, president of the Madrid golf club. De Zulueta was in the group with which Crosby played his final game.

U.S. consular officials also were at the airport and Harry Crosby asked them to handle preparations for the return of his father's body. The funeral will be held Tuesday in Los Angeles, he said.

In addition to two sons and a daughter from his second marriage, Crosby had four sons from his first marriage to actress Dixie Lee, who died in 1952.

Spaniards, like most other followers of the crooner's career, were numbed by the news of his death. Government television ran several old Crosby movies with comedian Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour, and newspapers praised him for his devotion to family life as well as for his singing.

Crooner Bing Crosby is shown in various movie roles over the years. From left, in 1938 in "Sing You Sinners"; in 1945 in "Going My Way"; in 1948 in "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court", and in 1965 in "Stargecoach." The famous singer-actor died at age 73 on Friday in Madrid, Spain. (AP Wirephoto)

New law eases Dublin city hood efforts

DUBLIN — Dublin voters could get a chance to say yes or no on an election ballot six months ahead of schedule regarding the proposed incorporation of Dublin since a new Assembly Bill has been passed and signed by Governor Edmund G. Brown, Jr.

According to Dublin Incorporation Committee Chairman, Dave Burton, AB-1533 completely revises incorporation procedures of new cities plus annexation or detachment from existing cities.

This new law goes into effect Jan. 1, 1978, Burton added.

Burton learned of the new law from his copy of a letter sent by Roland Mayne to Valerie Raymond, Mayne is Executive Director of the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO). Raymond is first district supervisor of Alameda County.

Burton said former procedures involved satisfying LAFCO requirements then going to the county board of supervisors seeking permission to circulate a petition for incorporation among Dublin residents.

On that petition, 25 per cent of Dublin voters are required to sign requesting proposed incorporation be put to a vote, Burton explained.

Under the new law, the procedures would be, "By resolution of application any affected district or the county may commence proceedings by passing a resolution of application to be filed with LAFCO. In the case of Dublin either VCSD or the county could commence the action. If this is the case, then no petition is required."

Burton added that under the new bill the petition method could still be used. A 25 per cent voter approval to bring the issue to ballot would again be required.

"But we won't have to go that route if VCSD or the county will support us," he continued.

The letter continued, "...With either the petition or resolution of application, LAFCO could approve with conditions or disapprove. If the proposal is approved it would go to the board of supervisors for action. Any action by the board of supervisors approving a new city would be subject to confirmation by the voters."

Burton said this means if VCSD would instigate the resolution of application it would reduce the time related to getting the issue put to a vote from four to six months.

"That's because VCSD would be a district dealing with another government agency (LAFCO) instead of individuals trying to justify getting the incorporation measure put to a vote."

He said the board of supervisors could then call for an election.

"It could move the election date up to June 1978 from November, 1978."

Mori prefers Dublin, Pleasanton annexation

DUBLIN (D-Pleasanton) discussed Assemblyman Floyd Mori Dublin incorporation with a small group from the town's chamber of commerce at an informal lunch meeting Friday.

Mori, a former Pleasanton mayor, acknowledged that from a practical the preferred annexation of Dublin into Pleasanton but added the community had distinct needs and would clearly have to choose annexation before he would support it.

"Dublin has not had representation at the county level in planning (for Valley problems) but parochial competition doesn't solve regional problems," he said, citing the recent sewer and transportation issues as examples.

Mori said annexation could lead to more comprehensive, efficient government if residents from the Dublin sector worked to be included in such a joint government and he added, "In Sacramento the biggest problem we have is to solve interjurisdictional problems between local governments."

The chamber members disagreed as a whole and said many Dubliners clearly identify with the community, citing this weekend's heritage fair as an example.

"LAFCO (the Local Agency Formation Commission) says there's one town in the entire Valley and that won't happen. We have thousands of people here involved with a Dublin identity that would be lost with annexation," said chamber vice president Dave Burton.

"Efficiency of government is what you have to look at but we're the oldest town in the Valley, 125 years old," he told Mori.

Other talk centered on the financial advantages for Dublin if it chose to incorporate. Sales taxes there last year produced a surplus of $1 million that Alameda County absorbed and many Dubliners want to keep that sum.

"The reason people come here to shop is Pleasanton and Livermore have blown their opportunity," said Tom Driver.

Stores moved into Dublin when other Valley cities either planned for them poorly or rejected them outright years ago, he said.

Mini-sewer foes may protest to county

HAYWARD — Opposition to the possibility of package sewage treatment plants in the unincorporated areas of the county is expected from Pleasanton and Livermore officials before the county planning commission tomorrow.

The county has been conducting public hearings to test public sentiment about the small sewage treatment plants which would permit small developments in rural areas.

The public hearing will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the public works building, 399 Elmhurst.

Both Valley cities are on record in opposition to a policy of permitting these small plants. They feel that septic tanks, done properly, are adequate for individual homes approved by the county in rural areas. Larger developments should have municipal-type sewage treatment, they feel.

Elected officials from both cities are expected to address the planning commission tomorrow.

Judge drops murder charge on Forgason

OAKLAND — Judge Winton McKibben has dismissed murder charges against Norman Forgason of Livermore because of lack of evidence.

Forgason had been charged with murder after his wife's body was found in a room at the now-demolished Crest Hotel on North Livermore Avenue in Livermore.

During a preliminary hearing in Livermore, Forgason admitted hitting his wife, but said she was standing when he left the room. A witness claimed that Forgason's blows caused his wife to fall to the floor.

Forgason pleaded innocent at his arraignment.

BART promo wins 'Silver Mailbox'

OAKLAND — They're smart about marketing at BART and they now have the award to prove it.

The Direct Mail Marketing Association of New York will present its coveted "Silver Mailbox" award to the BART board when the mail advertising group conducts its 60th annual convention in the San Francisco Hilton BART is winning the award for its "Go BART - Get Away Kit" tote bag. More than 9,000 people each paid $4.50 for the canvas bag after reading about it through direct mail advertising.

A BART press release said the promotion also increased ridership by 1,700 weekly trips.

The BART tote bag promotion has become part of the permanent DMMA library and will be used in the association's traveling exhibit, which tours the USA, Canada, Europe, Japan and Australia to promote direct mail advertising.

Student relationship meet expected to attract 1,000

A Student Relationship Conference, expected to draw between 1,000 and 1,200 high school-age youngsters, will be held at the Exhibition Hall of the Pleasanton Fairgrounds beginning Monday evening and continuing for six nights through Oct. 22.

Rev. Don Larmour of Redwood Chapel in Castro Valley is coordinating the event, open to all high school-age youth in the Valley and Southern Alameda County.

Featured speaker Monday will be Rev. Dawson McAllister of Denver, Colo., who'll discuss relationships of teens with their peers and parents. McAllister is known nationwide for his inspirational commentaries and discussions on teen problems.

More than 50 south county and Valley churches are participating, including Valley Christian Center and Evangelical Free Church. Any student may register for the conference which commences at 7 p.m. Monday. The first-night program lasts from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Registration fee for the full week, which includes a detailed manual, is $20.

Nightly sessions at the Exhibition Hall start at 7 o'clock.

The final night, Oct. 22, will feature a youth rally with the musical group "Glory Road" highlighting the program.

Well done, Tom

As a means of saying "thank you," teachers at Walnut Grove School in Pleasanton made and put up this huge sign, as well as others, to Tom Ingham (next to sign) who served as interim principal the past several weeks. Tom stepped in when Tony Huff resigned as principal in late summer and got the school off to a smooth start. He is the regular teaching vice-principal at the K-5 school. Expressing their thanks on behalf of the staff are Marilyn Auser, Sue Spiliotopoulos, Barbara Holman, and Judy Hilger. Ronald Begley, recently hired by the Pleasanton district, begins duties as principal Monday. Begley comes from a school in the Escondido district. (Times photo)

Foothill High girds for big 'wild west' homecoming week

PLEASANTON — Those high-soaring Falcons from Foothill High School will be out to rope some mustangs and make the "west" a bit wilder next week.

Monday starts Homecoming Week at Foothill and, now that there are some people called Foothill alumni all around, activities during the coming week are expected to be that much livelier.

There'll be spirit rallies each noon starting with the frosh pep rally Monday.

They'll be followed on successive days by the sophomores, juniors, seniors and, on Friday, the faculty. The group judged "tops in spirit" will receive a trophy.

On Friday, the big Homecoming parade will start off from Santa Rita and Black at 2:30 p.m. with the Foothill High band (all dressed in western costumes), homecoming princesses, a student float, and students dressed in "Wild, Wild West" theme attire.

The parade will travel down Santa Rita and Main to the Fairgrounds.

Grand marshal of the parade will be Boosters president Don Coyne, who'll be clad in western attire and seated in a horse-drawn buggy.

At 4:30 p.m. Friday, seniors will host a dinner for all alumni. Alumni are asked to call the school at 462-1615 by Tuesday morning if they plan to attend the dinner, scheduled for the school cafeteria.

Culminating activities will be the Foothill versus Monte Vista Mustangs league football game that night. At halftime, the queen candidates escorted by their dads will be presented. The homecoming queen will be crowned at that time.

Following the game, a dance will be held at the school with alumni invited to attend. The dance is scheduled from 9 to midnight.

DUBLIN — Dublin High School will hold its first blood drive on Monday, Oct. 31.

Parents, merchants, and community members, as well as students, are encouraged to donate. Not only is it a bank which helps the needy in the area, but it is a bank on which the family can draw. Also, as an incentive, the schools with the greatest number of donors are awarded scholarships.

Appointments to donate a pint of blood may be made for anytime between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. on the 31st. Appointments may be made by calling Jim Wiloughby at Dublin High, 828-6410, ext. 16.

Murray schools

Trustees eye demerits

DUBLIN — Murray School District trustees will hear reports on approaches to responsibility, including a discussion of the demerit system, from the principals of Wells and Frederiksen School at Monday night's meeting.

The board convenes at 8 p.m. at Dublin School, 7997 Vomic Rd.

Trustees will also learn that the lone bidder on the Frederiksen School conversion project has withdrawn his bid. In a report to trustees, business manager Darrel Carter says county counsel was consulted regarding procedure and directed the district to write a letter to the Hayward firm outlining the procedure for withdrawal. The communication was sent Thursday.

Carter recommends trustees take no action on the bid withdrawal pending further information from the bidder and county counsel. Carter further recommends the board consider the reasons for withdrawal before taking legal action against the low bidder for any alleged damages caused the district.

The board will also receive a report on the Mentally Gifted Minors Program, an educationally handicapped end-of-the-year report, act on a resolution authorizing the business manager to acquire federal surplus property, and close with an executive session.

Benefit walkathon set for Donlon School aid

The playground and educational supplies will benefit from a Walkathon scheduled today from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Donlon School in Pleasanton.

Students and adults in the area are invited to walk the course located behind the school. Pledges on a per-mile walked basis are encouraged. Special class and participant awards will be presented. The Walkathon is sponsored by the Donlon Parent-Faculty Club.

Trustee applicants must file by today

Persons interested in being considered for the position open on the Pleasanton Joint School District Board of Trustees may submit applications through 5 p.m. Monday.

The position became open when Joe Schwab submitted his resignation earlier this month. His unexpired term of office runs through March of 1979.

Interested individuals who are residents of the district are invited to submit a letter of application addressed to Mrs. Betty Nostrand, president, Pleasanton Board of Trustees, 123 Main St., Pleasanton 94566.

The Pleasanton district consists of seven schools, five elementary and two intermediate (junior high) schools. The board meets the first Wednesday of each month at the district offices.

The Board of Trustees will schedule interviews with those individuals who have expressed interest in the appointment. It is the board's intention to make the appointment before Nov. 6. State law requires that a board appoint a replacement within 30 days from the resignation of the board member.

After the appointment is made, the public has 30 days in which to petition for a special election if they are not in agreement with the board choice. Any such petition must include the names of 5 per cent of those who voted in the last district election.

The appointee cannot participate in board decisions during the 30 day period.

Present school board members are Mrs. Nostrand, president, Earnestine Schneider, clerk, Dr. Ronald Ott, and Nancy Hawtrey.

Mr. AND Mrs. JOHN MARK LUBRATICH
(Photography by Robert Thomas)

Lubratich - Vinci

Valerie Rose Vinci and John Mark Lubratich were married at St. Raymond's Catholic Church in Dublin on Sept. 10 by Father Fred Riccio. A reception followed at the Blue Dolphin in San Leandro. The young couple honeymooned in Carmel.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oronzo Vinci of Dublin. She graduated from Dublin High School, and received a degree in History from the University of California, Berkeley. She is presently attending California State University at Hayward.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Lubratich of San Leandro. He received his BA in Political Science in 1974 at California State University, Hayward, and is now working toward his Masters there.

Gavarre - Keffeler

Sharon Keffeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Keffeler of Dublin, and Alberto Gavarre, son of Mrs. G. Gavarre of Mexico City, were married on August 5 at the Century House in Pleasanton, with the Rev. George Vavrek officiating. A honeymoon in Carmel and San Simeon followed. Sharon is a graduate of Amador High School and the University of California and is presently employed as a systems engineer for Texas Instruments in Austin Tex.

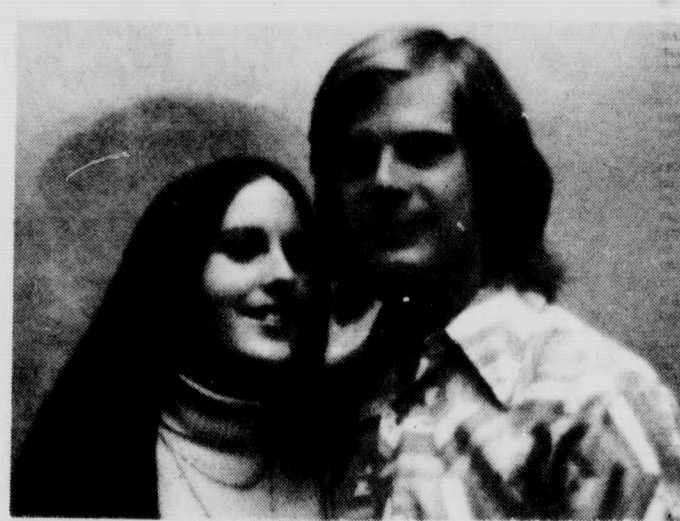

Alberto is a 1971 graduate of the University of Mexico and is a civil engineer for Mayo Construction Company. They will make their home in Austin.

Scofield - Hurley

Kathleen R. Hurley and Mark David Scofield have announced their engagement.

Kathy, daughter of the late Brian and Helen Hurley of Livermore, graduated from Livermore High School in 1971, and from Chabot College in 1973. She is presently the manager of the Cheese Factory of Santa Cruz.

Mark, son of Gary Scofield and Myrtle Kristalyn of Fremont, is a 1971 Graduate of Aptos High School. He served as an aviation electrician in the U.S. Navy until his discharge in 1975. He is now a preoptometry major attending Cabrillo College.

Maryanne had some real assets as an artist. She was creative, quick, easy to get along with. But she felt she wasn't "business-oriented" enough to really work at a fulltime job.

So, she teamed up with Cathy, an advertising major who had experience in graphic design.

Together, they combined talents — and found one job, which they shared, for a publications firm. Cathy worked out the business angles and readied the presentation, while Maryanne worked out the initial art and ideas.

The situation, now cropping up more and more often, is called job-sharing.

The growing phenomenon of job-sharing is one that, in the opinion of many, could provide unlimited opportunities for employment, especially for women.

It involves, simply enough, dividing one position between two people — people who complement each other in talent and skills.

The situation can benefit employers in a number of ways, according to a Palo Alto organization called New Ways to Work.

And here in the Valley, workers are starting to explore job-sharing too.

"Job-sharing can provide more options and more opportunities" for a worker, states New Ways to Work spokeswoman Willie Heller. "It can humanize working, and it can legitimize part-time work."

"When two people are job-sharing, it can bring a lot of creative energy to a position," says Ruth Freis, who shares a job with Miriam Miller as director of the Valley Child Care center in Livermore.

"Two people who complement each other can do a far better job than one person in a position," contends Renee Smith, a Livermore music teacher who is trying to generate area interest in the subject.

The new kind of "buddy system" allows women or men to "go through a job search in pairs," says Heller of New Ways to Work. They seek jobs by writing a resume and cover letter to prospective employers that "combine the talents of two people," Heller adds.

The situation, she says, "is really a natural," especially for the scores of women who are seeking meaningful part-time work.

Job-sharing can benefit employers in a number of ways, according to a New Ways to Work handbook. For instance, a job which has a high turnover — because it is tedious, high-pressure, or scheduled for off hours — may find a flexible and willing permanent work team with two women instead of one.

Absenteeism can be reduced with part-time workers — since appointments and financial arrangements can be scheduled when one employee can take up the slack, the organization contends.

In the case of illness, there's someone available who's familiar with the position. And, there's the output factor — two minds and bodies usually can work better than one. An employee who's working part time can put more energy into the position, says Heller.

"We could really have a fantastic school system here," says Renee Smith. "If something like this could be started in Livermore."

Smith, who has attended New Ways to Work seminars on job-sharing, has been instrumental in bringing a job-sharing workshop to the Valley through the American Association of University Women.

The AAUW will hold a special program on the subject Saturday, Nov. 5 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. for a limited number of people. For more information, call Renee Smith at 455-9819.

"Job-sharing could be a tremendous source of talent for the schools," says Smith. "But we're fighting against the system trying to bring it in."

Heller says that presently "there are quite a few teachers who are job-sharing" in the Bay Area school districts — but Valley school districts aren't among those which have tried it.

One area school district, the Livermore Valley Joint Unified, has "looked into" the issue of job-sharing, according to its personnel director, Jack Waggoner.

"We've had teachers approach us for job-sharing types of situations," reports Waggoner. "There's no question," he says, that teachers are "willing to do it, and excited about it."

The district, Waggoner says, does have some teachers who "work half time in the mornings, while the other teacher is picking up half time in the afternoons." Two other teachers, he says, are sharing a job by coming in to work on alternating week days, and sharing Friday work.

There are problems, he says, with keeping a job-sharing plan going in the district, mostly because of legal snags.

Because of a declining enrollment situation, he says, it could be even more difficult.

If a tenured teacher decided to share a job, and go part-time, and two years later, decides she wants to be full-time, "we'd have to hire her back," Waggoner explains, "whether we need her or not."

But, he adds, he thinks job sharing "could have its advantages, if it were legally and financially feasible."

For example, Waggoner says, "teachers who go half-time usually end up spending more than half time" on the job. The district, he says, could also use the talents and ideas of twice the people, "especially if you have two people who complement each other."

Waggoner says that although job-sharing "has been discussed" for the district's classified employees, so far "no formal plan" is being instituted there.

At the Lawrence Livermore Lab, one of the Valley's largest employers, spokeswoman Linn Currey says that job-sharing "hasn't been considered" as a possibility there yet.

Two major considerations, she says, "would make it impractical" at the Lab. "Two security

They search for work in pairs, looking to combine full-time skills in a part-time position.

clearances would be required for the same job," she states, and benefits would be difficult to work out.

It's those kinds of concerns, it seems, that are making it difficult for Valley workers to locate shared jobs. But despite that, New Ways to Work has been teaching people through workshops how to locate — and create — their own job-sharing situation.

Renee Smith, who attended one of the Palo Alto workshops, says participants are encouraged to go through "a self-assessment" to define their strengths and weaknesses. People are taught, through various exercises, how to "put their skills together. Smith emphasizes that the job-sharing team is "almost like a marriage" in that compatibility is essential.

Employers are concerned about that compatibility aspect, as well as some other unique problems that crop up when job-sharing is introduced. There's the major concern, for example, "about what this will all mean in terms of benefits," says Heller. But sometimes these doubts can be answered — for example, when one woman is covered by her spouse's insurance plan. Her job-sharing partner could then assume the full benefits of a position.

Many kind of benefits — vacation, life insurance, sick leave, for example — can be prorated, or adjusted for part-time employees, causing no extra expense on the employers part, according to New Ways to Work.

But New Ways to Work contends that the "increased productivity, flexibility and access to jobs will outweigh any additional administrative or benefits overhead costs."

There are other objections, too. How does an employer train two people? Who takes the blame when something goes wrong?

How do two people on the job communicate their problems and progress?

And each of those questions must be answered by the individual teams who are taking on the job-sharing responsibility.

It seems certain that there are still problems to be ironed out with the situation. And although it could be quite a while before job-sharing is actually commonplace here, some Valley employers do appear to be open to the idea and interested in this new form of working.

job sharing-

skills of two for the price of one

One resume, one job for two consultants

Ruth Freis and Miriam Miller decided that they enjoy "the creativity that comes with working in a team."

So, the two Livermore management consultants put their heads and their jobs — together.

Now they're sharing a position as director of the Valley Child Care Center, a state-funded agency which provides referral and child care services to Valley residents.

"We came to the job as a team," recalls partner Miriam Miller, "and we always presented ourselves as a team. That is unusual."

And, she adds, the situation has worked extremely well. "It's a real pleasure to have someone to share the joys and responsibilities with — especially because we have a very supportive situation here," Miller adds.

"We're sharing the burden of the responsibility," explains Ruth Freis. "This is a really heavy administrative job, and there's lots of stress," she adds. "It requires a great deal of energy — and a lot of creative energy comes from job-sharing."

Freis and Miller have been consultants, using the same kind of job-sharing situation for about five years. They've held the directorship of Valley Child Care for about a year.

To "create" their own shared job, Freis and Miller simply had "to explain the strengths of our partnership and our background experience," Freis explains.

"We both have children," Freis says, "and we've been working together since our kids were young." The advantages for employers, in this case, were many.

Freis says that sharing the position has freed the two for more "creative" and "risk-taking" situations — the kind that one person could not handle as well.

"We're sharing not only problems, but progress," she says.

And there's another benefit — in business relations, she says.

"Sometimes, if one of us just can't work with a person" for one reason or another, Freis relates, "we can send the other person in."

The two contend that "flexibility" is the key in any job-sharing situation. "It's like a marriage," says Freis, that contains close partnership and situations for compromise.

As for hours and work schedule, "we decide that on a week to week basis," Freis says. Each team has to work out their own problems with care. For instance, communication.

"People are concerned that they may have to repeat things twice" when they have some kind of news or information to relay, says Miller.

"We keep in close communication," Freis says, through the use of a tape recording system. Each partner talks out the day's work into the machine — and the other partner listens before going to work.

In that manner, adds Freis, "people who are dealing with us realize we're both informed about what goes on." Freis insists that their method of job-sharing "isn't the only way to do it." Partners can work out a one-quarter or three-quarter job-sharing team, or can divide it into half and half, as Freis and Miller do.

"We work from week to week" to decide who will be at certain meetings, and who will be in the office at certain time, Freis says.

The two have also hired on some Valley Child Care employees in a job-sharing situation. "It produces several view points" for the staff, Miller says.

Job-sharing, says Freis,

"is like a marriage." Much of its success depends upon the partner. But when it works, she says, it really works right.

Job-sharing, she adds, "is more efficient and more effective. I wouldn't go back to the old way of working," says Freis. "Each of us feels we could do the job alone — but we don't want to."

Facing the Klan

In this space in Wednesday's Times we saluted National Newspaper Week with a question: "Just how much do the people really want to know?"

On Friday, following publication of a news story revealing that the Ku Klux Klan had active membership in East Bay suburban communities, The Times learned that some people would just as soon not know about that kind of news.

It is a truism of this industry that "Newspapers don't make the news, they print it." Neither can it be assumed that we endorse the activities or philosophies of all those people and individuals and groups which gain space in our news columns. (The day that we print news only about those whose philosophies we endorse will be the end of a free press.)

To suggest that a newspaper

"lends support to the Klan by giving them all that free advertising" is to misread what newspapering is all about. This is still a nation which believes that fair people, fully informed, will make the best and the final decision.

Richard Nixon learned that; Bert Lance had to accept it. The Ku Klux Klan, once the hidden but thriving enemy of reason throughout the south, today has lost much of that power and most of that terror by being compelled to operate in a free and open society.

We believe that our own people, given the facts of KKK activity and ambitions in this suburban scene, will use that awareness to increase their own vigilance against bigotry of all kinds ... including that which hides behind a sheet, and that which is buried in ignorance.

Year round school

On Monday evening the San Ramon Valley Unified School District board is slated to choose two or more elementary schools to be part of a pilot project on year-round schools.

The Citizens Committee for Year-Round Schools has devoted untold hours, as have the board and administrative staff of the district, to the feasibility of such a project. The board has already determined that a pilot project will commence on July 1, 1978.

What remains is to hear the report of the citizens committee and comments of individuals, faculty and community groups Monday.

There is no unanimity of opinion on year-round schools. In fact, the difference of opinion in the San Ramon district appears to be along parent and administrator lines on the one hand and teachers on the other.

But the time has come for a commitment to specific schools to be included in the pilot project. The two, or more, elementary schools will be announced Monday at the school board meeting. It is quite likely a couple will be in the south and south-central areas of the district.

We support the work done to date by the citizens committee and administration and believe that parents concerned about the subject of year-round schools be in attendance at Monday night's meeting, scheduled to start at 7:30 at Monte Vista High School's Little Theater. The school is located on Stone Valley Road in Alamo.

Exit Elmer Cooper

Elmer Cooper will not be serving as executive director of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission at a salary in excess of $35,000 a year.

That is good news for Bay Area residents, who remember when Elmer Cooper was the well-travelled, well-expensed president of the Bay Area Rapid Transit board of directors. It was our sister paper, the Contra Costa Times, which first blew the whistle on Cooper's expense account as a BART director. Soon thereafter he was removed from the office of board president, and later resigned as a BART director for San Francisco.

It is also good news for honest public servants, and for their all-patient taxpaying benefactors, to learn that a man who has failed in his role as public servant at the regional level, can't simply move up to the federal level for his next big financial killing.

"There was certainly a post-Bert Lance wariness," the chairman of the Trading Commission acknowledged in his explanation of the commission's action in dropping Cooper as its first choice for that coveted job.

Yes, the press revealed and the public confirmed that Bert Lance was not an acceptable person for a high government post. The same one-two punch worked with Elmer Cooper.

The system works.

Bing Crosby

He came from another generation, but he belonged to all generations.

He was an entertainer whose talents crossed international boundaries, spanned all languages, reached all ages.

He was a husband and father who had known much pain, and in that too he somehow identified with each of us whose life has not always been perfect.

Harry Lillis Crosby had the mark of greatness, the ease of success, the humility of wealth which is known by few people on this earth. And through it all, he never forgot to enjoy.

Others have been given greater talent. Some of have done more with their lives. A few have even left us with something more enduring. But surely there is no one who has done all of those things with more splendid result than the golfing crooner from Tacoma, Wash.

Thanks for the memories, Bing.

The week in retrospect

Freedom to kill

Law enforcement officials have come down hard on a criminal justice system in this state that continues to send the multi-offender back onto the streets to murder, molest and steal again.

The latest, tragic incident occurred in San Francisco last month when a police officer accosted a man who had just held-up a police decoy. The officer, Douglas Gibbs, died of wounds caused when the thief turned on him.

The man accused of murdering Gibbs had been paroled only a year earlier, after serving eight years in prison for beating to death a 93-year old man.

That he was, on parole, after a 20-year record of increasingly violent crimes, is a devastating example of the failure of the criminal justice system to protect the public.

And, as George Nicholson and Tom Condit of the California District Attorneys Association point out in a recent release, this case isn't an exception.

Nicholson, a former Alameda County senior trial deputy, and Condit point out in their column that FBI statistics for 1975 show nearly two-thirds of the murders that year were committed by people released from jail or prison during the previous four years.

In a recent Rand Corporation study, 49 inmates in a medium-security California prison were interviewed. All 49 were doing time for a robbery and all had served previous prison terms.

Rand found the 49 had committed 10,500 felonies among them, an average of 210 crimes each, or about 20 crimes per prison-free year.

Most convicts "saw their crimes as freely chosen, preferred acts or as responses to special circumstances," the Rand report said.

"Fully half were either unsure about or had no intention of leaving a life of crime.

"More to the point, over half the sample asserted that nothing could have deterred their return to crime after their previous release from prison.

A new law just passed in the California legislature, and authored by Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, earmarks $6 million in state funds over the next three years for establishing special "career criminal" units in district attorneys' offices.

The units will be staffed by fully-experienced prosecutors who will have the authority to refuse to plea bargain, to resist pre-trial release of suspects, and to seek the harshest possible sentence.

The Senate bill in question defines career criminals as those who have committed one major felony or two lesser felonies within a 10-year period preceding the latest arrest.

In 1969, Gibbs' killer was convicted of second degree murder after he broke into the home of 93-year old Christian Pedersen, a retired sea captain, and beat the old man to death.

After his release from prison seven years later, he was rearrested for burglary, convicted, and sentenced to a year in jail. Under the new law, this person could have been targeted as a career criminal at the time of the 1976 arrest, comment Nicholson and Condit.

The district attorney who handled the case would not have felt under pressure to sentence bargain for county jail time, but could have asked for a prison sentence, the longest the law would allow.

Had this multi-offender been sent to prison, he would not have been released in August of 1977 — and Douglas Gibbs, Badge 193 SFPD, husband and father, might be alive and with his family tonight.

Letters to the Times

Child abusers

Editor, The Times:

The editorial on child abuse (Times, Oct. 7) was vague, disconcerting and it raised some questions in my mind regarding what you were trying to say and what you said.

What is the "wrong path" you refer to? Should the PTA, the House of Representatives and all of the rest of us throw up our hands in despair and deliver children into the hands of their parents no matter what? Why do children have to be "captive members of an adult society" when there are many people who are concerned about their rights and quality of life? Who led "us" onto the "wrong path" you speak of? Do you believe that strong criminal penalties are right or wrong?

Because adults have the power "to influence or warp the minds of small children" should they be given the right in the name of being the biggest, strongest, oldest, loudest, and the one who distributes food, clothing and shelter?

There are alternatives in today's world for the child who must sell his/her soul just to stay alive within the folds of his/her natural family. Why didn't you mention the ways to help children and parents? There are numerous services available — Hotline, Parental Stress Service, shelters are available for abused wives and children, churches offer counseling and when necessary the state or foster homes might save a child's life.

What is the "worst possible family relationship?" Is a child still better off in a home where he/she is verbally abused, beaten, burned, starved to death while chained to a toilet bowl, sexually abused or locked in a dark closet for days at a time?

It is not a parent's right to abuse his child. I wouldn't care if you lined up one hundred "experts" to tell the public how much better off a child is with his/her's natural parents. — you and your experts would be wrong...

I wonder how many child abusers have had their position strengthened by what you wrote today.

It seems that the editorial was written in a spirit of conciliation towards the rights of the family and parent, and how important the family is in our society. You sacrificed children to this effort.

Foothill traffic

Editor, The Times:

Regarding the policing of students at Foothill High School when school lets out, and the rushing alongside the school bus — I would also like to add the "show-off" student drivers that "lay a scratch" as they leave the parking lot racing onto Foothill Road should also be ticketed by the police as I've witnessed every time I go to pick up my child.

The principal is there most of the time, but is unable to do anything about these youngsters who are trying to impress themselves, and why should he waste his time — he is a principal, or teacher, not a policeman. The sign is posted many times going both ways — "25 miles an hour when children are present" — these students should be reprimanded, as they are going well over the speed limit.

Student hassle

Editor, The Times:

Re letter from concerned parent regarding school bus loading. The writer feels since the school authority is not able to control the kids' unsafe habits, that a police officer be present to cite unruly kids.

Perhaps it would be more appropriate if some of the parents of those kids that ride the bus be present to "Police" the situation.

Let's see parents take responsibility for the actions of their children instead of passing off the job to another agency. Parents bring the kids into the world let them be responsible for them. Surely not all parents work and some could be present at the problem bus stops and in some cases even ride the buses to control the discourteous students that hassle the driver and other students.

FOUND the town

Joyce says: "You're going to love it, you really will!"

Joyce is the advance pitch person for Pacific Tel & Tel. Joyce is introducing us newspaper persons to Ma Bell's latest communications system. Joyce is very enthused with her work. The rest of us are scared half to death.

"The SG-1 is the very newest thing in telephone systems," Joyce advises us, eagerly. "You're going to love it."

Personally, I have not loved any instrument of communications since my brother Paul taught me to connect two empty apple sauce cans at either end of one piece of string. "Get back, get back!" Paul would order. Then, at the amazing distance of 50 feet, he would instruct me to hold my apple sauce can close to one ear. Paul would yell into the can held close to his mouth "Can you hear me?" I could. A miracle! How I loved that two-apple-sauce-can communications system.

"With the SG-1 you have camp-on, add-on and transfer and consultation flexibility," Joyce explained, enthusiastically. Everything flows through the PBX. Not one of those huge switchboards at which girls in long skirts sat, earphones strapped over shoulder-length hair, plugging in circuits with nervous abandon.

Today's PBX operator has abandoned the long skirt, and the shoulder-length hair. Gone too is the maze of circuitry, the unflattering set of earphones.

"Laura will know at all times which lines are busy by glancing up at the electronic screen on her console," Joyce says, with confidence. Laura is our girl at the console. Under the old telephone system, Laura was a loving person. Now, who knows?

"Laura will be able to camp-on a second call onto your line, which you will be aware of by a soft 'BEEP' heard on your receiver," Joyce explains, with enthusiasm. Under cross examination, Joyce admits "some people find the 'BEEP' offensive while they're on another call." But Joyce is not concerned.

"You'll have to hold the can closer to your ear," Paul would advise me, disgustedly. Paul was convinced that younger brothers could never master the wizardry of tin-can communications. He couldn't know that the empty apple sauce can pressed hard against my ear was not really all that empty. Some of the apple sauce remained, joined by a few ants. I was torn between my desire to hear brother Paul's voice over that 50-foot-of-string, and my anguish at having an ant crawl from tin can to ear drum. One of life's more terrible moments.

"When you want to bring a third party into your conversation," Joyce announces, breezily, "you simply depress and then release your switchhook once. Now dial the third party's extension. If you depress the switchhook again, then all three of you are on the same line. 'You'll learn to love it.'"

The assembled newspaper persons are in a quiet state of shock. Victims of 21st century technology. But I have yet to meet a Video Display Terminal I could love.

Ma Bell is long on love. Her TV'd commercials go heavy on the intimate relations... "Hello grandma?" the little tyke says. "It's snowing out here in Vermont and Suzy's nose is all white. Suzy's crying."

Ma Bell encourages small children to call their grandmas. Particularly when small child is in California, grandma is in Vermont. "But call before 8 a.m. and it's very inexpensive," the TV'd commercial notes, happily. Grandmothers all over the nation are being roused out of bed at 7 a.m. by tykes wanting to relate stories of Suzy's frost bite. All in the name of love.

"No, you don't have a 'hold' button," Joyce replies, sheepishly. "And keep in mind the caller can hear EVERYTHING you say after you lay the receiver down to go looking for that file on your desk."

Reporters are not known for keeping information at their finger tips. Usually, they don't keep it at all. Put the caller on 'hold' and ask around until somebody in the office comes up with an approximate answer. Then get back to the incoming call with the wisdom of Solomon.

"Our old telephone system had the 'hold' button," Joyce is advised by one unhappy newspaper person. It is apparent that SG-1 is not the world's answer to communications after all.

"If you can't hold the can to your ear then you aren't going to hear a darned thing," Paul advises me, with growing impatience. I am convinced the ant has worked its way out of the apple sauce can and into my head, there to gorge itself on my brain. I cannot believe that modern communications requires such suffering.

You'll love it, you really will," is Joyce's departing word. I used to feel that way about apple sauce.

Although not new in the law, the increasing number of lawsuits wherein injured persons seek redress from both the party directly alleged to have been the cause and third parties held to have contributed to the tort, poses a modern problem in society not widely known in earlier days.

It seems to have grown largely as a result of auto accidents where manufacturers and dealers have been brought into the suits on the contention that the auto was faulty.

Certainly it has been auto accidents which have catapulted suits against tavern owners whose customers are involved to the point that some bar operators are being forced out of business because of soaring liability insurance costs.

The extension of third party liability to bar owners is a recent development. Prior to 1971 the law held individuals responsible for over consumption of alcohol which resulted in injury to others. But that year the State Supreme Court handed down a decision which makes the seller responsible. Other court cases went in the same direction, finding the hosts of office parties responsible for the subsequent accidents of those attending. Those decisions put a damper on the tradition of holiday office partying.

Not surprisingly liquor dealers and bar owners are in near panic at the trend and have been seeking relief from liability through legislation. So far none has been forthcoming although at least two bills have been sponsored by Bay Area lawmakers which would remove or reduce liquor dispensers' vulnerability to third party suits.

What many may not realize is that the third party liability is not limited to those in the business of selling spirits. It applies to anyone. Thus a homeowner who has some friends in for festivities could well find himself a party to a lawsuit if one of his guests leaves the party and subsequently is involved in an accident.

Neither, for that matter, is third party liability limited to situations involving liquor. There are many situations wherein an innocent action can subsequently involve a person in a third party damage suit.

Taking some simple examples involving business operations. Conceivably a gun dealer could be held liable for selling a gun to a person who subsequently used it to injure another, even though the sale was perfectly legal. After all, the sale of liquor is legal.

A farm supply dealer who legally sells poisons for agricultural use might also become involved if the party used the poison negligently in a manner to harm others.

If one who loans an auto to another can be subject to paying damages for an accident caused by that person, it is easy to conjure up a long list of circumstances wherein a third party acting as a good neighbor could be held liable for having loaned some item to a party whose subsequent negligence in the use of the item causes injury to someone.

It no doubt is this spectrum of possibilities which were among the reasons which prompted Assemblyman John Knox to undertake a two year review of existing tort laws. While his committee is far from having turned the corner on its monumental task, Knox has promised a report, and possibly some legislation dealing with certain phases of tort law, early next year.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a high school senior and have two sisters. One who is just two years younger than I am keeps a lot of sweet alcoholic beverages in her room. I found bottles hidden when I was looking for something under her bed. My mother and father are having a lot of marital problems now so I hate to bother them about this. Also, I'd hate to tattle on my sister. She's into the whole feminist thing and thinks I'm a pig just because I'm male. My mother would be hysterical if I brought this up but I know my sister's been staying out of class because she's too drunk to keep her head up. Any suggestions? —M.Y.

DEAR M.Y.: I'm not sure that your decision not to bother your parents about this is a good one. If either of them has a close relationship with your sister he or she might be able to help. Whatever problems they're having in their marriage won't be profoundly affected one way or another by this news. However, since I don't know the full story, I'm going to suggest an alternate plan that might be helpful.

Check your local telephone directory for Alcoholics Anonymous. Call, explain the situation and ask their advice. They may refer you to an Alateen group. This is a fellowship designed to help teenagers and preteens understand and solve their drinking problems. This has become such a serious health problem for young people that more and more such groups are forming. The age of addiction is getting lower every year. The National Council of Alcoholics now reports that children as young as 9 are becoming addicted.

Someone for A.A. will advise you and may be willing to talk with your parents too, if you wish.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband died six months ago and now that I'm beginning to mend emotionally, I'm concerned about what will happen to my four children. They loved him dearly and yet they've been strangely quiet and unmotivated about his death. We try not to talk about it but I have a feeling that they take their tears into their rooms at night. Should I be doing something to help them? —T.F.

DEAR T.F.: The most important thing you can do is to encourage them to express their feelings of grief and to openly talk about their loss. They may avoid discussing their father to protect you or save your feelings. This is not healthy for any family member.

What happens is that these feelings of anxiety, grief and anger go underground into the unconscious. The result can be depression, loneliness, arrested ego development and rage that may last for years. Children who are never allowed to express their feelings about the death of a parent or a sibling may also find it extremely difficult to form deep, strong relationships later in life. The person's emotional development freezes at the age he was when his loved one died.

How does one mourn properly? Dr. Henry Seidenberg points out that grief begins with an acute awareness of loss. Then mourning proceeds in a slow, piecemeal way, bringing the mourner to the realization that there really is a loss. Gradually, memories become less painful.

Try to share your feelings with your children and don't be afraid to express your sadness. Get your children to express their feelings of anger about "being left," because there will be some rage along with the grief. Let them know that this is normal and there's nothing wrong with it. Make sure they also know that their father's death was in no way their fault. Children often suffer from irrational guilt.

SIDE GLANCES

by Gill Fox

"She's celebrating her 10th anniversary... if you count all four marriages!"

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—A few years ago if a housewife went to a doctor and was depressed or worn out and tired he would prescribe some pills and send her home. My doctor called them energy pills, now known on the street as "speed."

If you go to a doctor now and ask for them he looks at you like you are a drug addict or a drug pusher. I haven't taken anything like that for about four years.

I am so depressed and discouraged about everything. I don't even want my kids. I don't have the energy to take care of them. I'm sure there are a lot of housewives and mothers who have the same problem and don't know who to talk to about it. Maybe you could print something that would help millions of women on what to do about depression.

I might add, when I took those pills I was a beautiful person and loved my family. I loved to keep house and fix meals. Lately it's been such a chore I just throw anything on the table.

DEAR READER—Your letter doesn't sound like an individual who has a real depression as a major psychiatric problem. Depression runs the spectrum from a simple mood depression to a psychotic depression that requires immediate professional treatment.

You sound like many women who have run short of energy. It's true that those "pep pills" put some go in people and many liked the elevated mood they obtained from them. One prominent physician who gave them to his swinging patients, some rather prominent nationally and internationally, became known as Dr. Feelgood. And you are right—the medical profession and society frowns on this practice.

Such medicines often cause complications you wouldn't think about, including a number of psychotic reactions at worst and more often loss of normal good judgment.

The feeling of fatigue or lack of energy on the down side of the mood swings that people have is very common. In about 80 per cent of the instances it is not associated with a medical disease, but the first step is to be sure you are not one of the remaining 20 per cent who have a medical problem that needs attention. This can be anything from a serious illness, an anemia, or a simple matter of poor nutrition. That is why you need a medical checkup.

Often psychological factors play a big role. That means you can do something about it yourself. Goals, opportunities to do something you really like, a change in scenery are all important factors. New responsibilities often help stimulate a person and provide a new sense of thrust or energy.

A number of habits can sap your energy too. These include cigarette smoking, obesity and lack of physical exercise. Just being occupied with unstimulating multiple light chores is not adequate physical activity. Most women need something more—such as tennis if they like it or some other sport they enjoy. Regular exercise helps to keep your body fit and gives you an increased sense of energy.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

"Devil ray" is another name for the great manta, a giant ray of the open sea. This huge fish can grow to be more than 20 feet across and weigh well over a ton.

Its big winglike fins and flattened body give the devil ray the appearance of a huge bat flapping through the water.

Subject of many fish fables, the devil ray has long been feared by pearl divers and fishermen, who believed that it would enfold them in its great wings and then devour them.

But there is no danger of that. Despite its name and great size, the devil ray is harmless to humans.

It eats only small kinds of animal life in the ocean. Two feeding fins in the front of its head help sweep food into its cavernous mouth. Its teeth are very small and perhaps useless.

Devil rays often leap high out of the water, landing with a thunderous slap. No one knows why they do this, but it may be to shake off annoying skin parasites.

We have just decided to establish a "Jacoby Silence is Golden" award to that bridge player who remains silent under the greatest provocation.

West held the first trick with the jack of hearts and promptly shifted to a low trump.

South won in his hand and led a second heart. Back came a second trump and South had to lose a third heart and a club.

"What could I have done?" complained South. "The defense was too good."

North could have said any number of things starting with the mild suggestion that South would have made his contract. If he had led a small club and played low from dummy instead of that heart, all the defense could do would be to cash a second heart to keep South from making an over-trick.

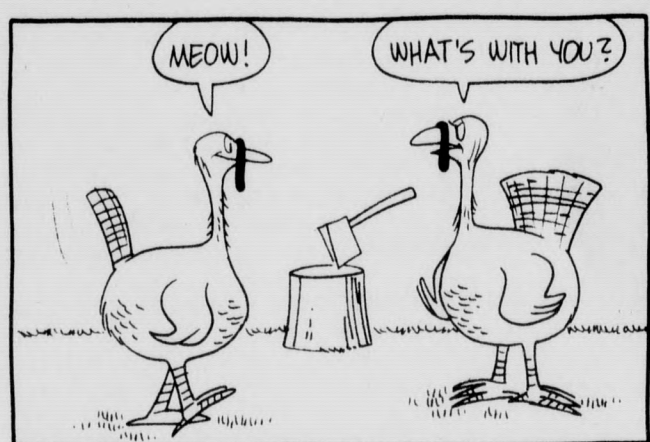

Or North could have said something stronger such as "Play bridge!" or maybe "Use your brain, if you have one."

In any event North merely said, "Deal!" and gets our award.

John Knox Presbyterian

DUBLIN — This Sunday, Oct. 16, a special service of Baptism by immersion will be celebrated at 5 p.m. by the congregation of John Knox United Presbyterian Church of Dublin, but at the First Christian Church, 1380 Lomits Ave., in Livermore.

Mr. Randy Chester, a youth, will receive the Sacrament upon profession of faith in Jesus Christ as his personal Lord and Savior. Jim Griffes, pastor of John Knox Presbyterian Church, will administer the Baptism with the assistance of Elder Russ Kennedy.

The Rev. Griffes, but neither is it denied. The Book of Order of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. states that Baptism is a Sacrament of God's grace which may be offered by any method using water as a sign of the Holy Spirit and in accordance with the scriptural mandate (Matthew 28: 18-20).

Yankees' Luo Piniella robs Ron Cey of potential game-tying homer.

Dodgers dig deep hole Jackson pads Yank margin

LOS ANGELES — Reggie Jackson touched off a three-run New York rally with a double and later walloped a home run, backing the brilliant four-hit pitching of Ron Guidry and leading the Yankees to a 4-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers in Saturday's fourth game of the 1977 World Series.

The victory gave the Yankees a commanding 3-1 advantage in the best-of-seven series and one triumph away from their first World Championship since 1962.

They will go for the clincher Sunday, with Don Gullett opposing the Dodgers' Don Sutton.

Jackson, so often the center of controversy in this troubled Yankees season, settled his latest squabble with Manager Billy Martin in a brief meeting Friday before Game 3. Jackson had criticized Martin's selection of ailing Catfish Hunter to start the second game of the series for New York.

The $2.9-million right fielder had driven in one run and scored two others in the Yankees' 5-3 third-game victory. He ripped his way out of an extra-base slump with his double and homer Saturday. Until Game 4, Jackson had managed only four hits — all singles — in 25 at-bats during the American League playoffs and the World Series.

Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda gambled on sore-armed Doug Rau to get a game of the regular season Oct. 2. The gamble backfired quickly when the Yankees ganged up on the left-hander for three runs in the second inning. Jackson started the rally, ripping Rau's second pitch of the inning into the left-field corner for a double. Lasorda, sensing trouble, immediately got Rick Rhoden up in the Dodgers' bullpen as Rau went to work on Lou Piniella, the Yankees' leading hitter in the Series.

The count went to 1-1, then Piniella smacked a single to right field, chasing home Jackson with the game's first run. Next was Chris Chambliss, who, like Jackson, had not had an extra-base hit since the end of the regular season. He snapped that slump with a double to left field that sent Piniella racing to third.

That finished Rau, Rhoden came on to get Graig Nettles on an RBI grounder to second base as Chambliss moved to third. Now the Dodgers pulled their infield in, hoping to cut off the run at the plate.

But Bucky Dent ruined that strategy with a single to right, scoring Chambliss with the third Yankees run.

The rally had been built around four New York hits — all to the opposite field — and gave Guidry, the Yankees' most dependable pitcher all season, an early lead with which to work.

The slender left-hander with the explosive fastball did not allow a hit until the third inning when, with two out, Rhoden drilled a double that bounced into the left-field stands. That brought up Dave Lopes, who was mired in an 0-for-13 Series slump.

The count went to 2-2 on the Los Angeles second baseman, then Guidry made one of his few mistakes all day and Lopes powered the ball over the center field fence for a two-run homer.

That brought the celebrity-studded record Dodgers Stadium crowd of 55,995 to its feet, roaring approval. Now the score was 3-2 and Rhoden was mowing down the Yankees.

It looked like Los Angeles had the tying run in the fourth, when Ron Cey, who hit 30 home runs during the regular season, jumped on Guidry's first pitch and sent it soaring toward the left field bleachers.

Piniella, fighting a brilliant sun, turned and went to the wall. The Yankees' left fielder timed his leap perfectly, reached over the fence with his glove, and came downers the rest of the way and his lone tough spot came in the seventh, when a leadoff single by Cey and a two-out walk to Lee Lacy brought up Steve Yeager.

But the Yankees' left-hander got Yeager on a forceout grounder, ending the threat.

By then, Jackson had supplied an extra run with a two out homer in the sixth. It came on a 1-1 pitch and was the third career homer in Series play for Jackson.

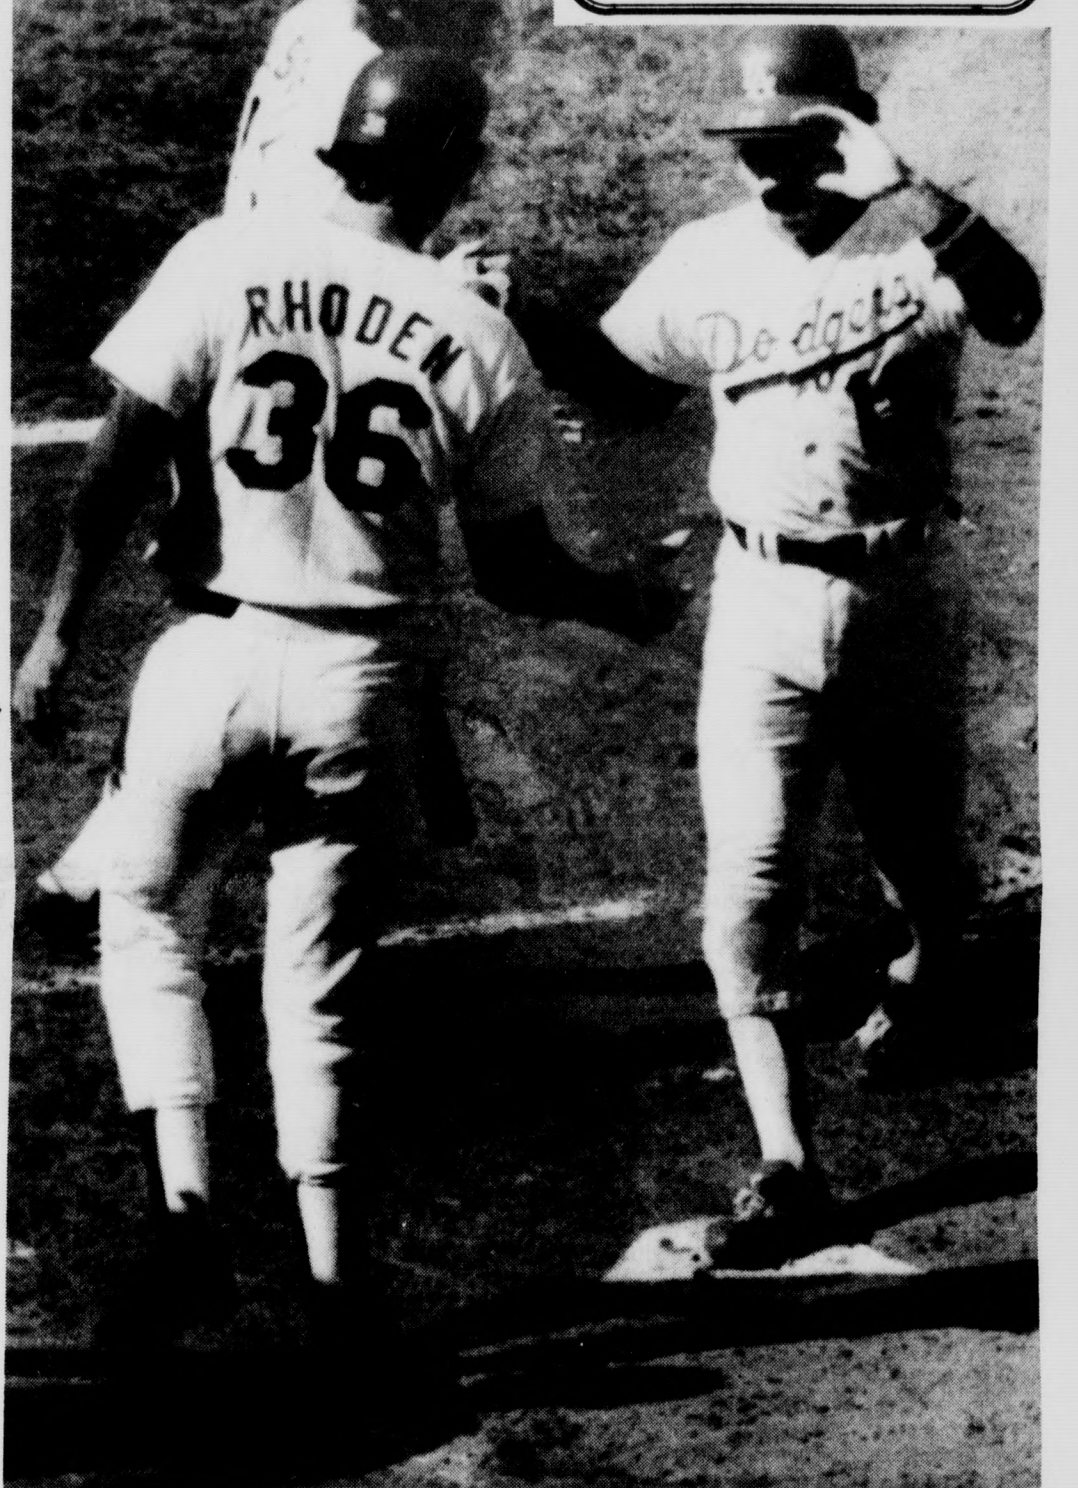

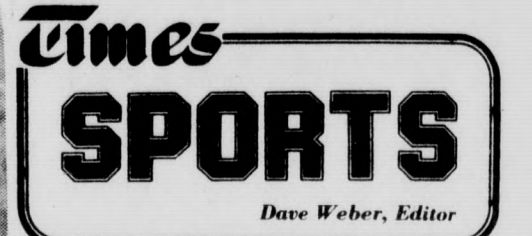

Except for Jackson's shot, Rhoden worked seven outstanding innings of relief. He permitted just one other hit, struck out five and walked none, but it wasn't quite good enough against Guidry.

With relief ace Sparky Lyle warming up in the bullpen, Guidry carried his two-run lead into the ninth. He retired Reggie Smith on a pop fly to second, then Cey doubled down the left field line on a ball the Yankees argued was foul.

But, with the tying run at the plate, Guidry got Steve Garvey on an easy ground ball to second and finished Los Angeles by getting Dusty Baker on a fly ball to center field.

After the final out, the Yankees temporarily forgot their problems. In the dug out, Martin took Jackson's face in his hands and appeared to plant a big kiss on the right fielder's cheek. The Yankees were together, at least for Saturday.

Young passes 375 yards

Bears drown Beavers, 41-17

BERKELEY — Cal quarterback Charlie Young hit receiver Floyd Eddings for an 83-yard touchdown bomb on the very first play from scrimmage and the Bears never looked back as they defeated visiting Oregon State, 41-17, at Memorial Stadium yesterday.

Young enjoyed by far his finest day in a Cal uniform, passing for 375 yards and running for 24 more to set a school record of 399 yards in total offense. In addition to his bomb to Eddings, the junior quarterback connected with halfback Oliver Hillmon on scoring tosses of 85 and 43 yards, the former being the second-longest touchdown pass in Cal history.

Hillmon's performance was nearly as spectacular as that of Young, and allowed him to emerge as a complimentary offensive force to much-heralded fullback Paul Jones. Hillmon added touchdown runs of three and four yards to his two touchdowns receiving, and finished the day with four receptions for 160 yards and 26 yards rushing on nine carries.

"If I come through like this, it has to help Paul's game," said Hillmon. "In the past our running game has been very strong-side and fullback-oriented. Last week, Washington State anticipated that and stopped us."

Hillmon said his performance as a receiver was especially encouraging. "I was coming off what I felt was a bad game as a receiver," he explained, "so it meant a lot to me that Charlie had faith in me and kept looking my way."

The game-opening touchdown pass to Eddings came on a stop simple pattern in which the freshman speed-ster just flat outran Oregon State cornerback Kerry Justin in a single-coverage situation. After the contest, Cal coach Mike White explained why the Bears went to the bomb so early in the game.

"Their cornerbacks are very good and they take some liberties to allow their defense to do other things," he said. "We thought we had to shake them up and we also wanted to establish that we do have a bomb in our offense."

After the Beavers were unable to move the ball on their first offensive possession, Cal took over and drove 57 yards for a touchdown. Highlighting the drive was a Young to Jesse Thompson pass play for 37 yards which was almost a carbon copy of the pass to Eddings. Jones followed some fine blocking to score on an off-tackle play from 10 yards out.

Oregon State began moving the ball on the ground, something then other teams have had difficulty doing against the Bears defense. The result was a long drive which resulted in a 28-yard field goal by kicker Kieron Walford to pull the Beavers within ten at 13-3.

Reserve quarterback Eric Anderson also had a good day. The 6-5, 205-pounder completed six-of-seven passes for 61 yards and did a good job of moving the Bears' offense in three brief appearances.

Sutton saved: so what?

LOS ANGELES — Rookie Manager Tommy Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers took a gambler's calculated risk Saturday ... and lost.

"With all their left-handed power, I thought it would be best to start Doug Rau," said Lasorda of the southpaw pitcher who had not started a game since Sept. 27.

"We also thought Don Sutton could use an extra day's rest," added Lasorda.

Rau, who injured his shoulder pitching batting practice on the final day of the season Oct. 2, had worked just briefly in relief in the National League playoffs. But Lasorda gambled that Rau could bring the Dodgers even in the World Series against the New York Yankees. Instead, Rau lasted just over one inning, as the Yankees beat the Dodgers 4-2 and took a commanding 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

"We knew Rau had the shoulder problem and we weren't going to go too long with him," said Lasorda. Rau got out of the first inning with the help of a double play, but left in the second after giving up a double to Reggie Jackson, a single to Lou Piniella and a double to Chris Chambliss.

"I wanted to stay in," Rau said. "I felt fine, but I'm not the one to say the decision was wrong. (Reliever Rick) Rhoden pitched fine. I thought I could pitch as well as anyone today. I might not have been too effective because I was still a little leery of the shoulder."

Rau said Lasorda gave him no time to argue his case on the mound. "When he comes out and doesn't say anything, you know you're gone," Rau said.

After the 4-2 loss, Lasorda was asked if he had second thoughts about starting Rau.

"No second thoughts," he said. "I made the decision and that's the decision we stuck by. I'm not going to second-guess myself or any of the coaches now."

"When I went out to the mound, Rau told me he could pitch more, and I told him, 'Son, you will pitch more, but not today.' "It was my selection of the starter and that's the guy I went with."

Sutton goes Sunday in an effort to keep the Dodgers alive. "My part in this setup is the same as it would have been if I pitched on Saturday," said Sutton. "There is no more pressure with us needing to win them all. My job is to pitch and try to keep the opponent from scoring runs. My job is the same as if I were pitching against Montreal in June. It doesn't change."

Raiders and Niners get streak tests today

The Oakland Raiders and San Francisco 49ers, each of them holding streaks of contrasting value, take to the field today as the fifth week of the National Football League season gets underway.

The Raiders risk their 4-0 record against the likewise undefeated Denver Broncos at the Coliseum. The 49ers still hope to break into the win column as they travel to New York to face the Giants in a televised game beginning at 10:00 a.m. on KPIX, Ch. 5.

The Raiders and Broncos are a sellout and will be seen on KRON, Ch. 4, starting at 1:00 p.m.

A victory for the Raiders today would tie them with the 1933-34 and 1941-42 Chicago Bears and the 1972-73 Miami Dolphins for most consecutive wins, including post season games.

They are shooting for their 18th consecutive win. Denver enters the Coliseum with a modest streak of its own, a club record six in a row, including the final two games of the 1976 season, and coach Red Miller is aware of the pending Raider mark.

"I'm sure that would be a milestone they would try to achieve," Miller said, "but I don't think it will make it more difficult playing them."

"While we have the utmost respect for the Raiders for what they are, an outstanding football team with superior talent in every department, we aren't going into the game being in awe of them," adds Miller.

The Riders have won 26 of the 34 meetings between the teams, including the last four in a row and six of the last seven. Oakland won last season's matchups 17-10 and 19-6.

The last Raider loss was 48-17 to New England on Oct. 3, 1976.

Cardinal joyride ends in Seattle

SEATTLE — Joe Steele's 83-yard touchdown gallop and Nesby Glasgow's 73-yard punt return for a TD broke open a close game in the fourth period as Washington downed Stanford 45-21 in an important Pacific-8 Conference football game Saturday.

Leading 17-14, Steele broke over the right side and sprinted untouched down the sideline into the end zone on the second play of the final period.

The Huskies held the Cardinals on the next series, and Glasgow fielded Brad Fox's punt at the Washington 27 and, picking up blockers along the way, zigzagged to the touchdown that gave the Huskies a 31-14 lead.

Stanford, 4-2, which suffered its first loss in three conference games, closed the gap briefly with 10:14 left to play on cornerback Guy Benjamin's third touchdown pass of the afternoon to James Lofton, this one good for 19 yards.

But on the next Washington series, fullback Ron Gipson gave the Huskies some breathing room with his 59-yard scoring romp.

Greg Grimes capped the scoring with a 29-yard return for a touchdown on an interception of a Benjamin pass.

Benjamin, the nation's No. 2 passer who sat out last week's loss to UCLA with a strained knee, hit Lofton with a 42-yard scoring strike on the first play of the fourth quarter and found him with a 10-yard TD pass for the Cardinals' first score in the third period.

Benjamin, who was hampered by a strong Washington rush in the first half, finished with 28 completions in 47 attempts for 376 yards. He was sacked three times for 26 yards in losses in the first half.

Washington, now 3-3 overall and 2-0 in Pac-8 games, took a 3-0 lead late in the second period on Steve Robbins' 26-yard field goal. An offside penalty on fourth down and one gave the Huskies a first down at the Stanford 33. A pass interference on the next play moved Washington to a first down at the 15.

The Huskies, who rolled up 507 yards in total offense to Stanford's 409, got their first touchdown with 37 seconds left in the first half on Steele's 7-yard run. Quarterback Warren Moon teamed with Spider Gaines on a 41-yard pass on the previous play.

Moon hit Gaines with a 26-yard TD pass that capped a 14-play, 99-yard drive for a 17-0 Washington lead with 5:35 left in the third period. Fox' 52-yard punt put the Huskies in a hole at their own one.

And, the winner is. . .

On Sports

Trying to decide which National Football League team has the rowdiest crowds is like picking a national high school football champion.

There are countless candidates in either case! Ironically, some of the roughest crowds are fans of the NFL's better teams, like the Pittsburgh Steelers, Oakland Raiders and Minnesota Vikings. This doesn't make much sense. If a team is winning there would seem to be little reason for its fans to display rowdy and obnoxious behavior during the

The frenzied mob

There's no question the Raider-Steelers rivalry has increased the tension between the fans of the two clubs.

However, my choice for the league's rowdiest fans has to go to the San Francisco 49ers.

San Francisco, which, except for the 1970-72 division title seasons, has been a perennial loser, seems to bring the worse out of its fans.

When the 'Niners used to play at Kezar Stadium some fans used to pelt the security police with beer bottles and other sharp objects.

While the situation has improved somewhat since the team has been at Candlestick there is still a great deal of disorderly conduct at the games, particularly when San Francisco is losing.

And that has been most of the time, lately.

A good example of this occurred last Sunday when a fan, apparently disgusted by the atrocious play of both the 49ers and visiting Atlanta Falcons, rushed on the field in an attempt to grab the football.

He probably thought he could take the ball and go all the way for a touchdown, something the 49ers have had a great deal of trouble doing this season.

But he never made it, poor lad. Four security guards jumped him on the 50-yard line and he didn't get the chance to run with his beloved pigskin.

In an earlier game against the Miami Dolphins a couple of fights broke out in the west stands after the 'Niners had fallen behind in the third quarter. There was an excessive amount of drinking going on in certain parts of the stands and the mood of the crowd was ugly. The fight threatened to turn into a mini-riot as five or six men, apparently in their early 20's started trading punches.

But it's all happened before in the 'Niners' case. Until this year San Francisco's fans were probably the most devoted in the NFL.

After all, how many people can sit through 30 years of professional competition without one league championship to show for it.

Many 49er fans have been doing it but their patience is wearing thin as San Francisco is off to its worst start in 14 years.

Of course, there may be some justification, at least on an emotional level, for the fans' frustration. Talent-wise the team is not as bad as it's records shows.

True, the 49ers have much room for improvement in the offensive line defensive backfield and middle linebacker but their defensive front four and running backs are among the NFC's best. Trouble is, the offensive line seldom gives Delvin Williams and Wilbur Jackson enough time to even breathe when they carry the football.

The fans feel the team is not being run right and they are probably right. San Francisco's coaching staff has taken a conservative outlook, particularly on offense. They think they can outmuscle the opponents' defensive line in the pits but the 'Niner offensive line is not up to it.

The 49ers' fans' behavior is worse than that of a Raider or Steeler fan because the latter two teams' followers treat the game just as it is. A game.

Of course, it's easy to do that when your team is always winning.

Jackson, Rogge pace T-V

Linda Jackson provided the serving and Barb Rogge saved some key shots as Tri-Valley nipped the Coyotes 15-5, 14-16, 15-8 in Tri-Valley Recreation Volleyball play Wednesday night.

Kathy Merrill led the Coyote offense, while Vikky Hansen and Janet Torres were stalwart defenders. For Tri-Valley, Joanne Thorpe had good returns. Swensen's came through with a 15-4, 8-15, 15-9 win over Allied Brokers. Cheryl Kato, Lenore Whalen and Marilyn Mitchell were standouts on offense, while Paula Yost, Jeanne Packard and Vern Hill led the defense. Jeane Elliott provided the defensive punch for Swensen's, while Sandy played both good offense and defense.

Pizza Arcade won a tight 14-16, 15-8, 15-12 game over Round Table. Jeri Biletnikoff came through with the big saves and serves for the

Tough test, but Cowboys get an 'A'

A long night of unfulfilled Amador drives came to a satisfying climax for Livermore High School Friday night as the Cowboy football team remained unbeaten in EBAL play with a 17-8 win over the Dons in Pleasanton.

Ever since Amador moved from the opening kickoff 67 yards to the Livermore three-yard-line — just to cough the ball up in the end zone — the 'Pokes' gradually took control of a game they almost lost in the first quarter.

The stats show a dominant edge in total yardage — 302 to 136 — but not until the final clinging moments did the Cowboys have this one in the bag.

After the Dons eclipsed a 10-0 halftime lead on a nine-yard run by Rob Flores midway through the third quarter and the subsequent two-point conversion run by Tim Monday, Livermore recognized its tiny 10-8 lead and went to work.

They drove to the Amador 19-yard line early in the fourth quarter, but stalled and faced a fourth-and-ten. Although a field goal by Jeff Perry — who earlier booted a 29-yarder — would have forced an Amador touchdown to win, 'Poke' coach Ron Berg elected to go for the first down.

Quarterback Naish Piazza went for the right flag for receiver Ron Nicolosi, who hauled in the clutch pass at the two-yard line to seal the inevitable score.

Pete Martinez scored his second touchdown of the game on the next play, banging over from the two to add to his total of 108 yards on the night.

"If we would have made the field goal and then let them score, they would have been ahead," Berg logically explained about the fourth down call.

Trying his best to talk above the noise of his jubilant players and a rock band next door, Berg said in a hoarse, tired voice, "I think our kids were a little excited. We weren't playing that well in the beginning. Our linebackers weren't getting out there," he motioned with his arm.

The 'Pokes, coming into the game giving up a negative ten yards rushing in two games, gave no evidence of that in the beginning as the Dons amassed the majority of their yards on the ground, either through sweeps or short flare passes and long runs with the ball. However, they settled down to finish the night allowing only 46 yards but rushing. That total took into account five sacks of Inglesby by stalwart linemen Ron Rodriguez, Dave Farfan, Kevin Fitzpatrick and Darryl Hansen.

"Next to Manteca, this is the hardest hitting we've done all year," said Piazza, who praised his offensive line of Phil Vela, Greg Tenyson, Chris Rockstead and Lee Peterson, who opened up sizeable holes all night.

The Dons, who dropped to 2-1 in league, had two drives stopped by fumbles and let the 'Pokes slip in a touchdown on them just 24 seconds before the end of the first half.

It was moments earlier when Berg called time out after what appeared would be a half-ending drive by the Dons. But, Piazza hit Nicolosi with a 39-yard pass after Inglesby's punt and then split runs with Martinez to squeeze in the TD for a 10-0 lead. by Brian Martin

Wolves crunch Cal

DANVILLE — California High School snapped its scoreless streak at 11 quarters, but the Grizzlies had little else to cheer about as they lost to San Ramon, 34-3, Friday night.

Robert Perry's field goal from 26 yards out with 9:17 left in the second quarter pulled Cal to within three of the Wolves, but a high-powered San Ramon offense, led by quarterback Guy Houston, and a stingy defense led the Grizzlies the rest of the contest.

Houston was 17-for-25 on the night, including four touchdown passes, in leading a San Ramon offense that rolled up 333 yards to Cal's 148.

Senior receiver Mike Campbell also had an outstanding night, pulling in five passes for 69 yards and two touchdowns. Campbell also picked off a Ken Major pass and recovered a fumble on defense.

The Wolves first score came at the end of the first quarter when Houston tossed a quick slant pass to Campbell from one yard out. San Ramon the picked up two Quick scores late in the second quarter.

With 3:53 left in the half, Paul Fisch took a pitchout and blasted for a touchdown from two yards out to culminate a 12-play, 66-yard drive. San Ramon then tried an inside kick which Campbell pounced on after it touched a Cal player at the 45. The Wolves quickly moved down the field, scoring on third-and-goal from the 13 when Joe Pappalardo made a leaping catch in the back of the end zone.

With 1:38 left in the third quarter Houston again found Campbell, who streaked down the right sideline and made a fingertip grab in the rightside of the end zone.

San Ramon picked up its final score with only 24 seconds left in the game on a six-yard pass from Houston to running back Randy Huddleston.

Palmer leads upset

SAN FRANCISCO — Livermore High graduate Rich Palmer tossed a 47-yard scoring pass to Tony Watson to lead San Francisco State to a stunning 16-10 upset of Hayward State yesterday afternoon.

The Pioneers started the scoring in the first quarter when defensive lineman Gerald Goren tackled Palmer, the San Francisco quarterback, in the end zone for a safety. The balance of Hayward's scoring came in the fourth quarter, but it was too late.

Course record set

Nan Harvey set a new course record of 77 to come from behind to capture the 1977 Women's Club Championships at San Ramon National Golf Course.

The highlight of her round came on the ninth hole when she played her third shot out of the water, lofted it up to the green and sank a 15-foot putt for the par 4.

Bev Owens, several times past club champion, was runner-up.

In the first flight, Judy Riggsbee had a 208 net and Jeannie Hamill a 221 net to lead, while Harvey's Championship flight gross score was 251 and Owens had a 255.

Dottie Corson's 216 and Marry Richards' 224 topped the second flight.

Lorrie Silvernail and Betty Litchenburger b th broke 100 for the first time with a 96 and 92, respectively.

winners, while Sheila Hollman had outstanding serves for Round Table.

Teri Ravab and Anita McClouds supplied adequate sets and serves to pace Harri Realty over Print-It, 11-15, 15-8, 15-12.

Jane Harris came through with ket serves and Lora Bower backed her up with good front-line play as the Valley Realtors whipped the Rotators 15-4, 15-13, 15-10. Judy Cameron had outstanding serves for the losers.

Record 5th in row for MV

DANVILLE — Quarterback Bart Adams ran for 106 yards and three touchdowns in the first half as the Monte Vista Mustangs bounced Granada High School, 20-8, Friday night to win a school record fifth straight game.

Monte Vista is now 3-0 in the East Bay Athletic League and tied for first with powerful Livermore, while Granada tumbled to 0-3 in league play.

The Mustangs jumped out to a 20-0 first half bungle and shut out Granada until the fourth quarter, running their scoreless string to 10 quarters before Steve Robison found Mike Adams for an 11-yard score.

That came with only five minutes remaining in the game and the issue was no longer in doubt, as the Mustangs dominated the first half to earn the win. Monte Vista gained 246 of its total 331 yards in the first two quarters while holding Granada to just 46.

Adams scored on runs of 44, 3 and 2 yards and Phil Bevis drove in from a yard and a half away for a two-point conversion on the final score.

Granada coach Don Couch went with second stringer Jay McGowan at quarterback in the first half but after watching the Mats' futile attempts to move the ball — they had just two first downs — Couch went back to Robison in the second half. Robison responded by hitting 13 of 23 passes for 156 yards and Granada's only score, but he was also intercepted twice.

Eric Conklin and Steve Waldera each caught five passes for the losers, but the stingy Mustang defense kept the Mats out of Monte Vista territory until the fourth period.

Adams wound up with 116 yards in 19 runs as well as completing eight passes (to eight different receivers) in 13 tries for another 111 yards. John Pashby carried 12 times for 69 yards for the Mustangs while Steve D'Ambra led Granada with 33 yards in eight carries.

Monte Vista broke a school record set by the 1968 team — the first in the school's history — with Friday night's win and ran their overall record to 5-1. This is also the first time the Mustangs have been in first place in the EBAL this late in the season.

Next week the Mustangs face winless Foothill before hosting Livermore Oct. 28 in the game that it appears will decide the EBAL title. No Monte Vista football team has ever won a league crown.

The Mustangs offense put on its best showing of the season in the first half, putting together a 12-play, 76-yard drive and a nine-play, 65-yard drive for scores. All three TD's were scored by Adams on the same play, an option off the Mustang veer offense.

Wall 'n' Ball sets lessons

The Livermore Wall 'n' Ball club will conduct handball and racquetball classes on Saturday, October 22. Beginning handball lessons run from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., racquetball for juniors 12 years of age and under, starts at 9 a.m. and beginning racquetball follows at 10 a.m. The one-hour lesson which runs for four weeks, will cost $12 for beginners and $5 for juniors. To sign up, call Pat or Charlie Patterson at 443-1033.

BASKETBALL OFFICIALS
Tri Valley basketball Officials Association needs more members. The association will begin work on the recreation league games at Camp Parks starting Dec. 1. Interested persons, whether experienced officials or not, should contact Ernie Rodrigues at 443-3398.

Clinics will be held for new people prior to the season.

Much needed funds for the San Ramon Soccer Club will be raised with its annual Fall Soccer Dance to be held Saturday, Oct. 22 at Shannon Community Center in Dublin from 8:30 p.m.

On tap are music by "Banded Together," door prizes, free hors d'oeuvres and a no-host bar. All club members and friends of soccer are welcome. Tickets are $3.50 per person and available through all San Ramon soccer team mothers, Jackie Gibbons, 828-6685 and at the door.

WOMEN'S CROSS-COUNTRY
Chabot College is inviting all candidates for its women's cross-country team to report for workouts at 2 p.m. daily at the athletic field on the campus.

This marks the first year Chabot has fielded a women's cross-country team. It faces a full schedule of Golden Gate Conference meets.

Women interested in cross-country may contact Chabot track coach Glenn Malcom at 782-300, ext. 336.

WOMEN BOWLERS
Some of the top women bowlers in the nation are expected to be in the field when the Western Women Professional Bowlers visit Dublin Bowl, Oct. 21 and 23. All will be setting their sights on the championship trophy and top prize money in the Dublin Bowl Moped Open.

Prize fund for the event is estimated to be in excess of $7,000 with almost $1,000 of that going to the professional champion.

TENNIS ACTIVITIES
Tennis activities for players of all ability levels in the Dublin-San Ramon area are provided by the Dublin Tennis Club. This Club has been in existence for five years. Eight tournaments are scheduled November through February, according to the club's Publicity Director Eddy Liske.

The tournaments are held one weekend each month at the Dublin High School courts. Singles, doubles and mixed doubles are featured. The club emphasizes good tennis enjoyment. Liske stated. The club tennis ladder has become particularly active this year with many challenge matches held monthly.

Liske said the club has an open ladder. This means anyone can challenge anyone else anywhere above them on the ladder. If the challenger wins, he or she moves up to the losers' position.

Ladder players are required to accept at least one challenge monthly in order to remain on the ladder. Club membership is open to any tennis player or team in the Dublin-San Ramon area. Many members come from Livermore and Danville.

A "Battle of the Sexes" will be the October tournament. This tournament will be held at Dublin High School Oct. 22 and 23. Today is the last day for sign-ups. For membership information or to join the club call Rick St. John at 462-4622.

Membership forms and information are also available at United Sporting Goods, Dublin and from Christine Schmitzer, recreation supervisor for the Valley Community Services District, 828-7711.

SHOW TIME
The Amador Valley High School

Aquacade will present "Show Time" a swimming performance at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday, Nov. 3 and 4th at the Amador Valley pool. The fee is $2 for adults, $1.50 for students with without a student body card, $1 for students with a student body card and 75 cents for kids under 12. Proceeds will go to the girls' athletic program at Amador Valley.

PUMPKIN RUN
The Pleasanton City Recreation Department and the Jr. Woman's Club is sponsoring a 4 1/2 mile Pumpkin run Sunday, Oct. 30 through Pleasanton. The registration cost is $3 per person. Deadline is tomorrow. Families of three or more may run for $5. If a person wants to register the day of the race they must apply by 8 a.m. The race begins at 10 a.m. at the Amador Community Park.

There will be prizes for different groups in the race. Everyone who pre-registers will receive a free pumpkin. There will also be shirts available at the Shirt Shack in Pleasanton. For further information call 846-3202, extension 215.

SAN RAMON BOOT HOP
Much needed funds for the San Ramon Soccer Club will be raised with its annual Fall Soccer Dance to be held Saturday, Oct. 22 at Shannon Community Center in Dublin from 8:30 p.m.

On tap are music by "Banded Together," door prizes, free hors d'oeuvres and a no-host bar. All club members and friends of soccer are welcome. Tickets are $3.50 per person and available through all San Ramon soccer team mothers, Jackie Gibbons, 828-6685 and at the door.

Trend is more size and luxury

Washington, D.C. — Despite the reported demand for the "basic no-frills" house, new homes are more expensive to build, larger and better equipped than ever before, reports the National Association of Realtors.

In a special report analyzing recently published Census Bureau data, the association's Department of Economics and Research points out several characteristics of new homes which clearly indicate the continued trend toward increased size and luxury. Among them:

— The average size of a new home built in 1976 was 1,690 square feet. Five years earlier it was 1,535 square feet.

— More and more people want fireplaces. Fifty-nine per cent of last year's homes had at least one fireplace. Only 34 per cent did in 1971.

— A majority of new home buyers want central air conditioning. Fifty-three per cent of the homes built for sale in 1976 had it installed, compared with 38 per cent five years earlier.

— The convenience of multiple bathrooms is being sought increasingly. Last year 72 per cent had two or more, compared to 52 per cent in 1971.

— Seventy-eight per cent of new homes sold in 1976 contained dishwashers, but only 48 per cent did in 1971. Nine out of 10 came equipped with stoves and one out of 10 with refrigerators — relatively unchanged over the five-year period.

— Buyers are accommodating to an annual 10 per cent increase in construction costs. The 1976 average price per square foot of $22.70 was 54.9 per cent higher than the 1971 average of $14.65.

The combination of increased size and per-square-foot cost has driven the median new house price up from $25,200 in 1971 to $44,200 last year.

As a result of the energy crisis rather than buyer preference, the source of home heating has changed dramatically in five years, the report says. The percentage of new homes heated electrically has soared from 27 per cent to 44 per cent, while the natural gas shortage has resulted in a drop from 68 per cent in 1971 to 47 per cent in 1976 of homes using the fuel.

A number of new home characteristics have retained their popularity over the past few years, according to the realtor analysts. For example:

— Three-bedroom homes are, by a wide margin, the most popular, accounting for two-thirds of all newly built houses for sale.

— Floor areas ranged from less than 1,200 square feet (20 per cent), 1,200 to 1,599 square feet (30 per cent); 1,600 to 2,399 square (39 per cent) to 2,400 or more square feet (11 per cent).

— Sixty per cent of newly built houses for sale were one-story houses, 27 per cent were of two stories or more and the remaining 13 per cent were split-levels.

Lonely realty class

There's a class in Contra Costa County where people can learn to be real estate secretaries — or those already working at such jobs can learn things they don't already know.

Only one problem, though.

The class instructor, Debbie Dees, needs more students. Right now, she only has five attending the class in a portable at San Ramon Valley High Danville, each weekday morning and she cannot figure out why there are so few students.

The class, Dees explained, evolved after a number of meetings with realtors in the county and the county department of education's Regional Occupational Program (ROP) which is sponsoring the course in conjunction with the San Ramon Valley Unified School District.

Officials of the ROP program stress that anyone can take the class, including people who are already working as secretaries for real estate offices.

All a person who wants to take the course, which is free, must do is show up for class Monday.

Dees, a realtor herself, had expected a larger attendance, particularly by secretaries currently on the job.

New escrow officers

Recently four members of the Alameda County Escrow Association were successful in passing a six hour examination required by the California Escrow Association to receive professional designation either as a Certified Senior Escrow Officer or as a Certified Escrow Officer. They are (from left to right) Britt Gray, manager of First American Title Company, Orinda office; Joan Vietor, manager of Newport Escrow, located in the Fremont hub; Betty Dawson, manager of Pacific Land Title Company, San Leandro Office; Sue McCoy of Century 21 - Eberhart Real Estate; and Rosemary Conger, employed by Safeco Title Insurance, Oakland.

Information that is being taught in the class would be extremely helpful to real estate brokers, perhaps saving them from facing violations of state laws by having a "sharp" secretary who could catch problems before they become problems.

She also thought that real estate brokers in the county would support the class and perhaps encourage some of their secretarial help to attend the morning courses.

"Maybe they (the realtors) just aren't aware of what's going on in class,"

Dees said. "Two brokers I showed the curriculum to were flabbergasted by its content," she continued.

The only prerequisite for taking the class is an ability to type 40 words a minute. "What I'm teaching is what I know," said Dees, who said she too, started out as a real estate secretary but worked her way into selling and administration.

Subjects taught in the course include real estate ethics, law, advertising, marketing, and how to deal with listing agreements, multiple listing procedures, property management, accounting and calculating closing costs on house sales.

People taking the class will be given a certificate to show they know some of the ins and outs of the real estate business.

"Realtors all say they're excited about the class, but I can't get their girls," Dees said.

People who are interested in taking the class can get more information by telephoning the ROP office at 944-3445.

Crow Canyon offers elegance and space in a fine setting

Elegant features and luxury attributes highlight the spacious Woodside, plan four of the Country Estates series at Crow Canyon Country Club located near Danville, according to Kile Morgan Jr., marketing director for Broadmoor Homes, Inc., builder.

A gracious home of 2,808 square feet, it has four bedrooms and three baths. "and features volume and openness in its outstanding design," Morgan noted.

A double door entry opens to a spacious ceramic tile foyer. To the left of the entry is a formal step-down living room with a soaring two-story ceiling and massive masonry framed in over-sized fixed windows.

A formal dining room is situated a step up above the living room and separated by a wrought iron railing. It includes a patio view to the rear, and at the same time, a view of the open hearth in the living room.

A highly functional and spacious kitchen has a patio pass-through and a full line of gleaming, black gloss appliances. Even lighting is provided throughout by luminous ceilings, and durable ceramic tile glitters over counter tops. An added plus is a spacious corner pantry with ample storage space.

Adjacent to the kitchen is a nook large enough for family dining. Its bay window allows continual light while providing a picturesque dining setting. A step-down family room with sliding glass door also boasts patio orientation. A room with features of both elegance and comfort, it has a lavish wet bar for entertainment purposes and its own fireplace for warmth and relaxation.

The first floor maid's room, den, or guest room has its own full bath, and an adjacent service room has immediate access to the three-car garage as well as additional storage.

"The upstairs master suite is nothing short of spectacular," Morgan said, with its sitting room and separate dressing area with double sinks and ceramic tile counter tops. The bath has a sunken Roman tub of ceramic tile and a compartmentalized commode. Secondary bedrooms upstairs share their own full bath.

The Woodside is one of four plans belonging to the Solar home tax credit delayed

Sacramento — Because of a legislative snafu, you might have to wait for that tax credit on solar energy equipment installed in your home this year.

The legislature adjourned last week thinking it has approved a tax credit of $3,000 or 55 per cent of the cost — whichever is greater — for home solar equipment installed after Jan. 1, 1977.

But a last-minute amendment to the bill — AB 1558 by Assemblyman Gary Hart, D-Santa Barbara — accidentally deleted the retroactive provisions, and made the tax credit effective next Jan. 1.

"I'm really sick about this," said Hart, who failed to notice the error before the bill sailed through and was sent to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s desk.

Brown, who had cited the bill as a major accomplishment, hasn't acted on it yet.

Despite prices, people are buying homes

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — Little seems to stand in the way of the homebuyer's desire for a single-family house on its own plot — not money or energy prices or attempts by builders to change America's living habits.

The typical new house is still the conventional one-story, three-bedroom plan, but it now has two baths and is growing larger in other areas too. It is likely to have a fireplace and central air conditioning and almost certainly a dishwasher.

All this despite an energy shortage that causes operating costs to be higher, and soaring purchase prices that preclude ownership by some families unless they borrow from parents to meet the down payment.

It isn't the first time that homebuyers have asserted themselves against what might be considered the better judgment of others. Planners and builders have tried cluster housing small plots, shared green areas, co-ops and condominiums, modular units, no-frill housing and more.

As real estate agents note, young couples supposedly more attuned to change often seek conventional homes similar to those in which they grew up or to which their parents aspired... only bigger and better. A study of Census Bureau material by the National Association of Realtors shows that the average size, speculatively built house in 1976 was 1,690 square feet, compared with 1,535 feet in 1971.

Fifty-nine percent of the units had at least one fireplace, versus 34 percent five years earlier, even though the detailed hand labor involved added greatly to the total cost.

Fifty-three percent of the speculative homes those built on expectation of sale rather than to order contained central air conditioning, compared with only 38 percent in 1971, when energy costs were much lower.

More than 70 percent of houses had two bathrooms, against about 50 percent five years ago. And 78 percent were equipped with dishwashers against only 48 percent in 1971.

Despite the strong mar-

ket for new and better homes, a rate that now seems to assure some 1.9 million starts for the year, an even stronger market exists in sales of existing or used homes.

For the second year in a row, sales of such units will pass the three-million mark, and might even reach 3.5 million units, an unprecedented figure.

It is this trend that perhaps suggests some change in the attitude of homebuyers, in that a good deal of existing housing is urban, whereas new single-family homes are usually built on suburban or semisuburban lots.

Urban buyers apparently have heeded nobody's advice but their own, recognizing that such units, even if abandoned, often represent better buys than new housing. Accommodations often are larger, construction sturdier. Sewers and water connections exist, as do transportation and other amenities. Recognizing the absurdity of abandoning such housing — and sensitive to criticisms that money is being transferred from such areas to suburbia — savings and loan associations this week urged a new national urban housing policy.

country estate single family home series ranging from 1,858 to 2,808 square feet. The one and two story, three and four bedroom homes are priced from $109,000 to $181,000. Other homes offered at Crow Canyon Country Club are the Garden Manor series, zero-lot-line single family homes and the Fairway

Villa series townhomes. A championship, caliber 18-hole golf course belongs to the country club development as does a lavish 34,000-square-foot clubhouse which offers two dining areas, snack bar, grill rooms, cocktail bar and lounge, dance floor, golf and tennis pro shops and locker rooms, each with jacuzzi spa. The Crow Canyon Country Club has memberships available subject to the conditions of application.

To accompany these recreational amenities are 13 lighted tennis courts and an AAU competition swimming pool with racing lanes and one and three meter diving boards.

The private golf, tennis and clubhouse facilities will occupy some 100 acres of the total planned community, with nearly 100 additional acres of parks and open space. A homeowners association provides for maintenance-free living.

The new development by Broadmoor Homes, Inc. may be reached by taking Highway 680 to the Crow Canyon exit east and on directly to the community.

How to keep the cost of running a home down to a walk.

With energy prices continuing to rise, the best way to keep costs down is to buy a home that uses less energy. Like one that displays the Energy Conservation Home sign, which tells you that a lot of energy-saving features are built into the house, whether it's new or remodeled.

These days, new homes have to meet local, State and Federal (FHA) insulation and weatherstripping requirements. But Energy Conservation Homes go a lot further. Each has a combination of special, built-in energy-saving features, such as dishwashers with "off" switches for the drying cycle; water-saving faucets, toilets and showerheads; pilot-less ignition gas ranges; energy-efficient water heaters; fluorescent lighting; insulated hot water piping; set-back furnace thermostats; or clogged-filter indicators on heating or cooling systems.

The features included in each home will vary, but here's how the program works. PG&E awards points for each installed conservation feature. And builders must achieve a minimum of 50 points to qualify a dwelling as a PG&E Energy Conservation Home, and to display the sign.

Because so many people are demanding energy conservation, builders are beginning to get the message.

The time for careless consumption of energy is over. It's too expensive, and we can't risk running out of it. And a good time to make sure energy costs don't eat you out of house and home, is when you buy.

No one can afford to waste energy.

Cyclethon

Jim from Livermore Cyclery, Valley Times carrier Carla Avila and Sue Ellen Schell are preparing for the Alameda County Heart Association's fundraiser cyclethon Saturday, Oct. 22. Thirty leisurely miles have been mapped out from various starting points in Livermore and Pleasanton and transportation will be offered for riders who tire out. Prizes will be awarded and entry blanks are available from cycleries, recreation centers and banks in the Valley.

Lacing up

Linda Miner (left) and Bette Felton tie on those racing shoes to get ready for the Pleasanton Junior Women's Club first annual "Pleasanton Pumpkin Run," to be held Sunday, Oct. 30. The four and one half mile race through the city will help raise money for local community projects. Both children and adults can enter at an entry cost of $3 per person, or $5 per family. Racers can pre-register by calling the Pleasanton Recreation Department at 846-3202 ext. 215, or by contacting Sandy Schiel at 846-9337.

Joan Cupps (left) dishes out some homemade goodies to Sue Groth and Carol Varzee, members of Xi Theta Theta, who will be preparing the luncheon for this year's Vintage Creations display of antiques, crafts, art and nostalgia at Century House in Pleasanton, Oct. 21 and 22. The group will be serving crepes to hungry visitors from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the courtyard of the historic house. Visitors can browse through crafts displays and munch on goodies throughout the weekend.

Lab scientist's major star gazing concept

LIVERMORE — A local scientist has described a new twist to a half-century-old star gazing technique that may enable astronomers to measure the sizes and shapes of stars more easily than ever before.

Dr. Gregory Sanger of Diane Court in Livermore, an optical scientist at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, told a meeting of the Optical Society of America in Toronto this week that a new telescope cluster being built in Arizona could be especially useful in determining the shapes and sizes of stars.

The telescope array could thus help solve a long-standing problem in astronomy — that of cataloging the myriad of stars and other stellar objects by their sizes and shapes.

The technique is called "Michelson stellar interferometry." It was developed in 1920 by Albert A. Michelson, an American physicist. Applied to the standard single telescope, the technique allows astronomers to determine the approximate diameter of a star.

Its application to the six-mirror telescope array in Arizona, the Multiple Mirror Telescope (MMT), would be the most ambitious application of this star measuring method to date, allowing the simultaneous measurement of star diameters in six different directions.

"Even through the most powerful telescopes, stars appear as only bright spots," Sanger said. "But these stars may not be spherical or as large as the spot would indicate."

"Some stars may be spinning so rapidly they bulge in the middle. Such non-circular objects have different diameters in different directions. This new method would be extremely useful in detecting such differences," Sanger said.

A Michelson stellar interferometer is a device attached to a telescope that collects light from the same star at two widely separated points. When the device is placed on a standard telescope, light from the star is collected by two widely separated mirrors, focused to the same point at the bottom of the telescope and recorded on film. The beams from the two mirrors interfere with each other to form an "interference" pattern of light and dark lines on the film. The relative contrast between these lines can be related to the apparent size of the star in the direction of the widely separated mirrors.

The MMT, a joint project of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory and the University of Arizona scheduled for operation later this year, is a composite of six small telescopes arranged in a hexagon 270 inches from side to side. In this configuration, it acts as the third largest telescope in the world without requiring the large, expensive main mirror of a comparable simple telescope. Its unique design also enables it to be converted into an accurate Michelson stellar interferometer.

Each of the six mirrors can be simultaneously paired with another to form 15 distinct Michelson stellar interferometers. The 15 interference patterns would overlap on the film. An optical processing system could sort out the patterns and determine the diameters of the star in six different directions.

"In the past, Michelson stellar interferometry could be used to indicate only one diameter — the approximate size of the star," Sanger said. "Applied to the MMT, this technique can be extended to determine the shape of the star as well."

This application would be easier, faster, cheaper and nearly as accurate as "speckle interferometry," currently the only method of determining the shapes of non-circular stars, Sanger said. The latter technique requires long exposures and expensive computer analysis.

"This idea is a suggestion for the future," Sanger said. "Before the MMT can be used as a Michelson stellar interferometer, it must be 'phased' — the optical paths of each of the six telescopes must be adjusted so they differ by no more than 10 millionths of an inch. Once the MMT is phased, light from each of the telescopes arrives at the point of focus at the same time, which gives accurate interference patterns.

The Klan, the Nazis, And Hate

"We do not condone the Nazi party. They are a despicable and pitiful group which represents the worst example of hatred the world has ever seen. The best thing to do is ignore them."

San Jose Mayor Janet Gray Hayes

Publisher Dean Leshner, in his editorial, makes the point that we do not make the news, we merely report it.

Often we do not like what we have to report. That is true of the stories of last weekend about the Nazi Party rally in San Jose and of our story yesterday about the Contra Costa Ku Klux Klan.

Both of these groups, and others of their ilk that we read about these days, have one thing in common — hate. Hate of groups of people they do not understand. That is what binds them together. Often these hate groups hide behind such impeccable institutions as law and order, the family, the church.

Why is it then that in 1977, an age of alleged enlightenment, these groups are flourishing? You probably have your own ideas about that, but we will offer a couple.

Is it that we human beings, who often forget we are merely two-legged animals, have to put some people down to make us feel superior? In the days when this country was the haven for immigrants, didn't one nationality always put down another one? As human beings, we are often frail, and we have some faults. But to make up for those faults or to feel less frail, do we have to knock other human beings? Is that what "human nature" means?

Or do we join hate groups because things are going bad for us and we need scapegoats? Are we frustrated because of inflation and taxes and the Watergate and Koreagate — all things we feel we cannot control nor understand — and so we must lash out at somebody, something over which we might be able to have some control?

We would suggest that there are two kinds of hatred — healthy and / or victimless hatred and unhealthy hatred. The Ku Klux Klan and the Nazi party are unhealthy sorts of hatred. Here are healthy kinds of hatred:

"Things I have hated: A certain shade of brown Which elder ladies love; wet roofs that drip Their huge drops on your neck; short sheets that slip And leave your ankles freezing; fires that smoke; Carved, heavy furniture of varnished oak."

John Peale Bishop

"There are certain things — as, a spider, a ghost, The income tax, gout, an umbrella for three — That I hate, but the thing that I hate the most Is a thing they call the Sea."

'Flying Chef' offers microwave specialties

Flying fish? Not really. The Valley's own "Flying Chef," John Bird of Livermore, has planned a demonstration of gourmet microwave cooking next Tuesday at the Fish Place in Mission Plaza.

Bird is both a chef and private pilot, conducts his own cooking school and has demonstrated microwave techniques at numerous stores and restaurants. Bird has planned to prepare two fish dishes at the demonstration next week; filet of sole in bearnaise sauce with asparagus tips and grapes and crevette duxelles, shrimp in mushroom sauce.

Lunch and the demonstration are scheduled at the Fish Place, 1989J Santa Rita Rd., Pleasanton, from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. For more information call the restaurant, 462-4455 or 443-1278.

Chabot trustees view Valley impact report

The South County Community College District board is scheduled to adopt an Environmental Impact Report for the Chabot College Valley Campus at its meeting Tuesday night. Trustees meet in Building 200 of the Chabot College campus in Hayward.

Meeting time is 7:30 p.m.

The board will also hold a study session on computer services, act to approve a five-year educational master plan (1978-83), and act to okay working drawings and specifications for the LPG standby gas plant on the Chabot-Hayward site.

Carter programs ambitious but stirs opponents

By RICHARDE E. MEYER

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he is almost overwhelmed by everything he is trying to do at once and concedes that it might be confusing and "bad politically."

But he says he won't drop any of his initiatives because "I don't think it is in the best interests of the American people." — His remarks in an interview with newspaper editors and broadcast news directors from around the country, made public Saturday by the White House, reflect Carter's concern over his various programs and with polls showing a sag in his popularity.

Carter, who met with the group Friday at the White House, slipped below 50 per cent for the first time this month in his public approval rating. An NBC survey on Oct. 5, for instance, showed only 46 per cent of 1,600 persons polled approved of his performance in the White House.

A Louis Harris poll of 1,536 persons on Friday gave Carter negative ratings of 66 per cent, 76 per cent and 74 per cent for his handling of the economy generally, inflation and unemployment, respectively, and a 51 per cent negative rating on foreign affairs.

After listing more than a dozen areas in which he has taken action or plans action in the future, Carter told his interviewers: — "The multiplicity of these questions is almost overwhelming, and I know that politically speaking it is not very good." — He added: "If we have got 10 different major things on the fire at one time and we win and finally finish the reorganization package, and urban program, or a stimulus package, and we still have nine or so more that we are working on, it looks like things are all confused and we are not making progress."

Nonetheless, the President said, "I recognize the legitimacy of having too many things going on at once. I am trying to carry out my promises... It would be much easier for me to deal in foreign affairs just with SALT (a new strategic arms limitation treaty) and let the Middle East and Africa and everything else drift. But that is not my nature, and I don't think it is in the best interests of the American people."

In the wide-ranging interview, Carter also made these points: — "I think we are approaching a settlement with the Soviets" on SALT. In addition, "we have already gotten good, substantial progress. I believe, assured" on a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty.

— "We have an adequate means for verifying compliance with nuclear agreements."

Lillian Carter throws pitch in series game

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Miss Lillian Carter threw out the ceremonial first ball Saturday for the fourth World Series game and said she hoped her son, Jimmy, was watching back in the White House.

"I am sure he is," she said. "He arranged for me to come here and he was very excited about my throwing out the first ball. I know everybody in Plains is watching."

The 78-year-old mother of the president said she had been a Dodgers fan since the end of World War II and had been at Ebbets Field when Jackie Robinson became the first black man to play in major league baseball for the Dodgers in 1947.

"I read that he was going to play and I was very interested because of the racial connotation," she said. "I remember that when he was introduced, I looked around and I was the only one clapping for him."

Mrs. Carter said that she had been invited to attend the World Series by Dodgers Manager Tommy Lasorda, an old friend.

"I wanted to come for a homecoming game during the season, but something interfered," she said. "So I wrote Lasorda that if the Dodgers made the World Series, I hoped to see a game. This is my first visit to Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles, and I am greatly thrilled."

She said she tried to be a fan of the Atlanta Braves, but that it was difficult.

"The Braves aren't that good a team," she said. "Besides, in Plains, we can only see them on television on Saturdays and Sundays. What I do is wait until about 10:30 and listen to the Dodgers on radio. I can get them everywhere except when they are in San Francisco and San Diego."

Asked if she wished her son would have been a Dodger instead of president, she laughed and at first said, "Yes."

Then she added quickly, "No, that is not true. I just wish he were a better Dodger fan. But he is becoming one because of me."

She received a big hug and kiss from Lasorda when she arrived at the stadium minutes before the scheduled start of the game.

She was escorted to the edge of the Dodger dugout and stood only about 10 feet from Los Angeles catcher Steve Yeager. She gave a half-windup and then tossed a gentle sidearm pitch which landed in the center of Yeager's glove.

Then she held both hands high in a victory gesture as the sellout crowd cheered. She then was taken to the box of Peter O'Malley, president of the Dodgers, from where she watched the contest.

Japanese cops foil hijackers

AGASAKI, Japan (AP) — Police firing pistols stormed a hijacked commuter bus early Sunday, killing one gunman, arresting the other and freeing about 15 passengers held hostage for more than 15 hours here.

No casualties were reported among the passengers or policemen. Details of the predawn raid were sketchy.

The two masked gunmen — believed armed with a shotgun, dynamite and a gasoline bomb — seized the express bus Saturday afternoon on a busy street in this city on the island of Kyushu.

The bus was driven to a Nagasaki gas station and quickly surrounded by police, who tried to negotiate with the hijackers. Authorities said some passengers had been tied with steel wire around their necks.

Before the police raid, the hijackers had released five persons, including children and an elderly man.

The gunmen identified themselves as the "Aso Red Army Command" and demanded an interview with Justice Minister Mitsuo Setyama in the bus before they would release the hostages, believed mostly Japanese.

Authorities refused to grant the interview and negotiations had been reported at a standstill before the police raid. Police quoted one of the gunmen as saying, "We have no objective" for the hijacking.

It was not known whether the hijackers had any connection with the extremist Japanese Red Army, which has claimed responsibility for several terrorist acts since 1970 including the hijacking of a Japan Air Lines DC8 earlier this month. Also, the name the gunmen on the bus used, is a volcano on Kyushu island.

Nagasaki was the second Japanese city after Hiroshima to be atom-bombed by the United States during World War II.

Red bombers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet reconnaissance bombers operating off the East Coast have tried for the first time to confuse the U.S. air defense radar watching their movements, Pentagon sources report.

The Russian effort to interfere with the radar apparently failed, the sources said.

In the incident four days ago, two Russian Tu-95 bombers flying out of Cuba inspected and apparently photographed one of the latest U.S. destroyers as it was sailing in international waters off Boston.
